Foes gear up for rate hike hearing

Residential customers of Illinois Power Co. face paying a greater share of the increase than any other group of IP consumers if the utility's rate requests are approved by the Illinois Commerce Commission. William E. Steiner alleged today.

A spokesman for the Madison Concerned Citizens organization, Steiner is encouraging local residents to attend an ICC hearing on Illinois Power rates at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 28, at the Granite City Township Building, 2060 Delmar Ave.

He said the currently pending electric rate proposal would increase charges to homes by 24.9 percent; municipalities would pay 23.7 percent more, general service 18.2 percent, lighting 17.1 percent and industrial customers, 16.5 percent.

IP spokesmen say adequate funds must be generated through electric and gas rates in order for utilities to meet the public's present and future energy needs.

"For electric service classification I customers, those who use the least electricity per month, IP proposes the highest increase of all, 29.6 percent," Steiner charged.

"The same pattern holds true for natural gas provided by IP. Residential customers face a 15.9 percent increase, while general and large-volume users would pay a 5.6 percent increase."

Documents filed by IP with the ICC project for the 1983 calendar year overall rate hikes of 9.7 percent for natural gas and 19.9 percent for electric power.

Madison Concerned Citizens' president is Thomas Volok. Steiner serves on a special MCC committee formed to evaluate and oppose utility rate boosts.

The group is asking city and village officials in Granite City, Madison, Venice, Pontoon Beach, Wood River and Hartford to consider adopting resolutions regarding Illinois Power rates.

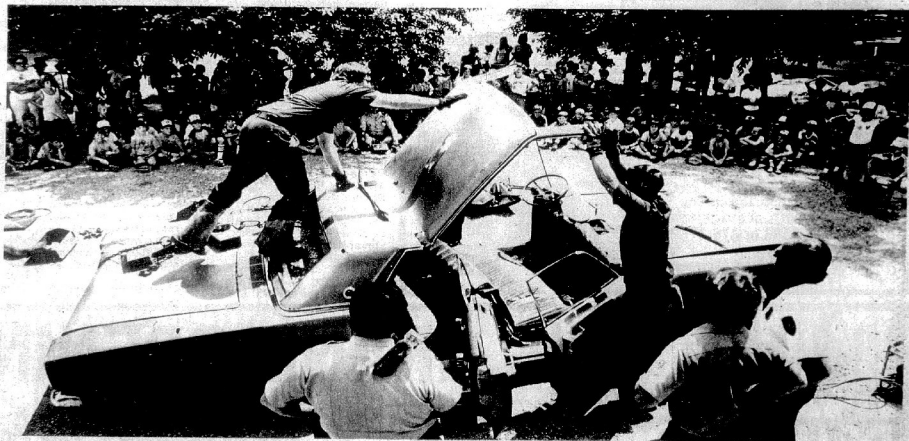

If the necessary permits can be obtained, an outdoor rally and march will precede the July 28 public hearing by an hour.

The ICC granted the hearing here at the request of the Madison Concerned Citizens. Verbal and written comments will be accepted by the commission from local residents, employees, groups and firms.

Steiner contended that the MCC is fighting higher rates for electricity and natural gas because "inclusion of funds in the rate base—for construction work in progress, including work that is behind schedule—is unjust, uneconomical and inefficient."

"This concept runs counter to the regulatory principle, 'used and useful.'"

SIMULATED RESCUE by Granite City firefighters and emergency medical technicians is staged Monday afternoon for participants of the Boy Scout day camp sponsored by the Cahokia Mound Council. The top of a practice car is peeled back during the demonstration in Wilson Park to show how complete access to a trapped victim could be achieved in an actual rescue operation. Standing on the car is Terry Suhr, an emergency rescue technician (ERT) with the fire department, who is assisted by Keith Talley, on ground at right, also an ERT.

Banks warned not to collect for towns

By GARY SCHNEIDER
Press-Record Editor

The apparent battle between Madison County Treasurer Michael S. Henkhaus and the tax collectors of Granite City, Nameoki, Venice and Edwardsville townships is getting hotter and hotter as the date for paying taxes gets closer and closer.

The issue is who will collect the first installment of taxes, possibly as early as next Monday. The latest bomb to burst in the war came in the form of a letter received by local banks yesterday informing them that if they collect the first installment of taxes for the township tax collectors, they will not be authorized to collect the second installment for the county treasurer.

By law, the township collectors can collect taxes until Sept. 1. Since the second installment of taxes will not be due until mid-October, most will have to be collected by the county.

The banks, which own both the county and the townships for deposits, are caught in the middle. They already have agreed to collect taxes on behalf of Granite City Treasurer Nick Petrillo, Nameoki Township Tax Collector Norman Hall, Venice Township Tax Collector Zella Niehaus and Edwardsville Township Tax Collector Stephen Lopez.

All other townships in Madison County have agreed to allow the county to collect taxes for them, or to collect them on behalf of the county. The four townships plan to distribute funds directly to such taxing bodies as schools and cities.

Hall summarized the views of the Quad-City collectors, saying, "We have an agreement with our banks and we expect them to live up to it."

Henkhaus, however, has a different view. "It's going to be so confusing," he said. "The county might 'hold' the bank in Madison, for example, is going to have one person collecting for five down there (Granite City, Nameoki, Venice, Chouteau Township and the county)."

"I am not going to let that happen. What happens when someone comes in with three tax bills, two in Granite City Township and one in Chouteau Township, and has one check to pay them?"

"The ideal situation is to mail them to the county and we distribute the taxes," Henkhaus said today.

The local collectors disagree. "Fearing that the county might 'hold' the taxes too long and collect interest on the money before distributing the taxes to the local taxing bodies, the collectors for Granite City, Nameoki and Edwardsville townships went to court, asking that Henkhaus be prohibited from enclosing envelopes, and instructions with the tax bills telling taxpayers to mail their checks to the county courthouse.

At 2 p.m. Friday, July 9, Associate Judge Edward C. Ferguson ruled on behalf of township collectors, giving them the right to collect the taxes for their own townships and distribute the money to local taxing agencies. However, Ferguson's formal order has never been released in writing to the collectors.

"Ivy Slate (attorney for Granite City) has been calling every day, but we can't get a copy of the court order from Judge Ferguson yet," Hall commented this morning.

Hall feels that if the written court order is shown to the banks, it will prove there is nothing prohibiting them from collecting the first installment for the township collectors and the second installment for the county.

Henkhaus, however, says he can keep banks from collecting for both. "I can collect wherever I want to collect," the treasurer says. He flatly denies that the warning to banks is "revenge" for his loss in court to the collectors.

The letter to the banks, signed by Lois Vazzi of the treasurer's office, states, "According to last Friday's court order, the county treasurer or the banks in Madison County will not be allowed to collect taxes for any township that has a town collector that is not working with the county treasurer and county data processing system."

"If your bank chooses to collect for any of the town collectors in these townships, they will not be collecting any tax bills for the county treasurer's office. They cannot collect for both and they cannot collect after Sept. 1."

Henkhaus says he has been on vacation and has not seen the letter, "but I imagine I would stand behind it." "All other banks in the county are set up to collect for me only," Henkhaus stated.

Hall said he has released the Bank of Collinsville from its agreement to collect for Nameoki Township, saying he felt that bank was being "put in the middle," since Collinsville Township is utilizing the county treasurer for tax collection.

However, he says, he expects all Granite City-Madison area banks to live up to their agreements, adding that the local collectors usually receive 70 to 75 percent of the total taxes in their townships.

Mrs. Niehaus, however, feels "the Water company seeks 5.7% hike

Illinois-American Water Company has filed with the Illinois Commerce Commission for a rate increase affecting the area served by the company, including most of the Quad-City area. R. W. Greaves, vice president and manager of the company, explained that the increase generated by the filed rates is required because of higher operating costs, as well as the added investment in water facilities in the service area.

Increases have been filed for each district of the company based on the operations of each district. The filed rates for the district serving the East St. Louis, Belleville and Granite City areas would raise the average quarterly water bill for a residential customer being served by a five-eighths inch meter in the High Service Area from $9.00 to $9.56 (or an increase of $2.12 per month). The water bill for a small usage customer (using 300 cubic feet per quarter) being served by a five-eighths inch meter would raise from $16.05 to $19.04 per quarter (or an increase of $1 per month).

In the Low Service Area, including the Quad-Cities, the average bill for a residential customer being served by a five-eighths inch meter would increase from $37 to $43.36 (or an increase of $2.12 per month). A small usage customer (using 300 cubic feet per

Lawsuit challenges sick leave

By GEORGEANN MCGEE
of the Press-Record

The Granite City firefighters union president did not learn until Monday that a lawsuit was filed in Madison County Circuit Court last Friday to declare illegal the city's sick leave policy, but he said the case has been brewing for several months.

The recent action is the third different objection of the firefighters to city employment policies and the second dispute that could not be settled within normal negotiations procedures.

To settle the second dispute, Firefighters Local 253 and city negotiators are working on a compromise to replace a newly-proposed sick leave ordinance expected to reach the city council floor next week.

Firefighters' President Robert Bell said all three actions are unrelated and

Simmons heads port

Walter "Buck" Simmons was elected chairman of the Tri-City Regional Port District board during its regular meeting Monday night. Simmons succeeds Homer Huber in that position. Other board members retained as officers are Dale Arnette, treasurer, and John Bellocq, secretary. Arnette begins his four one-year term as board treasurer having first been elected to the post in July of 1979.

Bellocq was appointed in September, 1981, to the post of secretary after the death of William "Mike" Ebersold.

Other board members include Harold Fischer, Kent Holsinger and Howard Silas.

Among the first actions of the reorganized board were the reappointments of Carl Ranft as general manager and Randall Robertson as the attorney for the port district.

The board awarded a contract for the oiling and chipping of approximately two miles of port district roads to the DeLaurent Construction Co., of Wilsonville, Ill., on its low bid of $3,300.

The next lowest bid submitted to the board for the work was $8,950 by C. D. Peters Construction Co. of Granite City.

It was decided to replace the 60-ton crane, owned by the port district and leased to Granite City Terminals, with a three-year-old 100-ton crane.

Approval was given by the board for Ranft and Oscar Nazetta, Foreign Trade Zone 31 manager, to attend the annual meeting of the Foreign Trade Zone Association on Oct. 10 in Portland, Ore.

Ranft also will be a moderator of a panel discussion at the fifth annual meeting of the Illinois Port Association on Aug. 4, 5 and 6. The three-day gathering of representatives from the 11 port districts in the state will be in Joliet.

Mount Vernon hosts Ainad event Saturday

President Mike Davidson of the Jefferson County Shrine Club, Mount Vernon, has announced that the club will host the Out-State Ceremonial of Ainal Shrine Temple at the Mount Vernon Shrine Park Home, Saturday.

The candidates will arrive at noon and will be served a barbecue dinner when the initiation is over.

Potentate Mark Moreton, head of the 9,000 Nobles of Ainal Shrine Temple, will head the officers, and Temple Groups, there for the ceremonial. Moreton was born and reared in Mt. Vernon, but now makes his home in Freeburg.

The ceremonial has been named to honor Clarence E. Brehm, a prominent businessman of Mount Vernon and a noble, but now deceased. More than 50 new nobles are expected to be a part of the ceremonial class this Saturday.

Ainal Temple, which is 70 years old, has 41 Shrine clubs in Southern Illinois, and 40 Shrine units. Its jurisdiction is south of Route 70 to Cairo on both sides of Illinois.

Last year saw Ainal send 386 applications for treatment at the St. Louis Unit, Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children, and Ainal is transporting 51 children for care at the Cincinnati Burns Institute.

12 years for murder attempt

Circuit Judge A. A. Matosian has sentenced Edward E. Freeman, 23, of 907 Washington St., Madison, to 12 years in an Illinois state prison for a Jan. 15, 1982, murder attempt and armed robbery attempt in Granite City, and to two years in prison on an April 2 Illinois Bureau of Investigation charge that Freeman had delivered a controlled drug on Nov. 9, 1981.

A similar drug delivery count against Freeman, filed March 15 regarding Nov. 9, was dismissed by Associate Judge Edward Ferguson on a motion by the state's attorney. And Judge Matosian dismissed a charge of unlawful use of a weapon occurring Jan. 15. Judge Ferguson dismissed two other March 15 charges of controlled substance delivery, alleged to have taken place on Nov. 13 and 24, respectively. Those defendants were Cornelius "Tootie" Bell, 29, Venice, and Dick "Oddie" Cross, 55, Venice.

Freeman in the early fall of 1981 was placed on one year of probation and sentenced to 90 days in the Madison County jail by Judge Matosian for a July 8, 1981, burglary attempt.

On the following Jan. 15, Madison, Venice and Granite City police were alerted about a robbery attempt in the parking lot across the street from Cohen's supermarket, 2301 Illinois Ave. Freeman was taken into custody 25 minutes later after a foot chase in West Madison.

Victim of the attempted robbery was Judy Buehler of Granite City. Intervening on her behalf was a grocery bagger, Lindell Simpson, who was already outdoors helping a customer in front of the store.

When Freeman drew a .25-caliber pistol, aimed it at him and appeared to pull the trigger, the pursuing Simpson leaped behind a pile of snow. The man fled and police were contacted. It is believed the gun did not discharge.

Simpson recalled seeing a man initially walking toward the store from the area of W. 24th Street and Illinois Avenue. The man stopped Judy Buehler as she got out of her car in the parking lot.

The would-be robber told her to give him her purse, but she refused and a struggle ensued.

She was thrown against her auto, the purse falling to the pavement. When Simpson approached to aid her, the man left the purse there and ran toward an alley behind the parking lot.

Another Venice officer, two Madison police and three Granite City officers searched for the passenger, who had run from Jackson Street.

Noting that a fleeing man was carrying a pistol, Madison Patrolman Gary Marsala drew his own gun and chasing along the 800 block of Jefferson Street and between homes into the street in the 800 block of Washington Street.

Freeman ran behind two parked cars and then threw a pistol into a yard, 813 W. Washington, where the weapon was recovered. Marsala caught and arrested the man.

It was alleged Freeman

New computer degree sought
New state resources totaling $573,791 are needed for program requests included in Resource Allocation and Management Program (RAMP) planning documents for the 1983-84 year at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. The SIU board said in approving forwarding to the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).
If approved, it will result in conversion of the current computer science specialization in the mathematics program to a degree major.

Exhibiting your vegetables at fair

By CHRIS DOLL
Area Garden Adviser

Gardeners can earn honor and maybe some spending money by exhibiting prize-winning vegetables at county and other fairs.

They can also experience the challenge of competition and the spirit of friendship of other gardeners. But winning exhibits usually require some planning and work.

Before planning exhibits and harvesting crops, get a copy of the fair book or premium list so that available categories can be studied. There are variations between fairs, so read all the rules.

Pay special attention to quantities and size specified for each plate or display, as well as the time for making entries.

Vegetables in any display should be at their peak of maturity and quality at the time of judging.

Sometimes it is difficult to have vegetables at the prime stage when the fair is held. Crops that mature early can sometimes be held by picking them slightly immature and placing them in good storage conditions until a day or two before fair time.

A crop such as onion should be harvested early and exhibited in a cured, dry condition.

Other crops should be picked at optimum maturity and may require some refrigeration for best storage.

Vegetables such as tomato, pepper, beans, carrots, cucumber and cantaloupe should be refrigerated immediately after harvest. Place them in the vegetable crisper or a plastic bag to prevent dehydration.

The vegetables that have been refrigerated should be brought out and warmed enough before judging so that they do not "sweat" before or during judging.

When selecting vegetables for exhibition, remember there are several points a judge considers for all types of vegetables. These are quality, condition, uniformity and whether the entry is typical of its variety.

Quality refers to the best and prime eating condition of any vegetable. It also means good color development, shape, texture and size.

The largest size does not necessarily mean the best quality and, therefore, does not guarantee a prize.

Condition also is important. It is an indication of how the crop has been handled and grown. Crops should be free of dirt, cuts and bruises, and insect damage.

Also, they should be free of any waxes and residues of treatments that have been used for insect or disease control.

Uniformity is an important consideration in judging. Each specimen on a plate and each vegetable within a display should be of similar size, color, maturity and shape. The ability to produce a uniform crop is a measure of cultural ability.

Additional information on displaying vegetables is included in the University of Illinois Circular 1150, "Vegetable Gardening in Illinois," at the various county extension service offices or at the Office of Agricultural Publications, 123 Mumford Hall, 1301 W. Gregory, Urbana 61801.

Korea honors GC's James Wade

By VALERIE EVENDEN
of the Press-Record

James Wade, formerly of Granite City, a resident of South Korea for the past 22 years, was honored last month with the presentation of a medal and a performance of his opera, "The Martyred," during commemorative events observing the centennial of Korean-American relations.

His opera, based on a novel by Korean-American author Richard E. Kim that was a "best seller" in the United States in 1964, was performed six times between June 16 and June 21 by the National Opera Company of Korea.

The performances recognized the opera company's 20th anniversary, as well as the Korea-United States centennial.

A story of the Korean War, the opera version of "The Martyred" was first performed in Seoul in 1970.

The recent presentation at the Korean National Theater was under the supervision of conductor-director Charles Ross Perlee of Los Angeles, featuring leading singers, the National Chorus and the Korea National Philharmonic Orchestra.

The opera was recorded for future commercial release by Pacific Music Co., Ltd., of Hong Kong. Performances were also videotaped for rebroadcast in Korea, the U.S. and elsewhere at a later time, Wade said.

A production of the musical drama currently is in the planning stage for Los Angeles.

Nearly 200 musicians, artists and technicians were enlisted in the production, which attracted an audience in excess of 5,000 persons. Reporters from the United States and Japan attended to file review and feature articles.

Wade, who received the recent production was provided by the Korean-American Centenary Commission, the International Cultural Society of Korea, the International Communication Agency of the American Embassy in Korea and the local Fulbright Commission.

In late May, Wade was one of 44 Americans to receive a medal and citation for advancing Korean-American friendship at a banquet in Seoul.

The event was attended by representatives of the American delegation to the centennial observance, led by retired General Lyman Lemnitzer.

Wade is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Wade, 2519 Madison Ave., and a 1946 graduate of Granite City High School.

He is the author of seven books and more than 1,700 articles published worldwide, including 29 short stories in five languages.

The former resident has been cited for his cultural contributions on earlier occasions by the Korean Musicians' Association, the Ministry of Culture and Information and the Press Center of Korea.

Presently, Wade is employed as visiting professor of music at Yonsei University in Seoul.

He also serves as advisor to the Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee publicity department and is a freelance writer and consultant to numerous private and official agencies in Korea.

Wade resides in Seoul with his two sons, Adam, 16, and John, 14. His wife, the former Marilee McClintock of St. Louis, died in 1973.

SIUE plans ethnic picnic

Members of the Slavic and East European Friends of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville feel that July would be a good time to have a picnic in the park.

This July is no exception. The organization will hold its annual family picnic at Chambers Park in Florissant, Sunday, July 18. Festivities begin at 11 a.m. and continue until 8 p.m.

Tickets are $2 per carload and can be purchased from any friend or at the gate. Chambers Park is located on Lindbergh Boulevard one mile west of Jamestown Mall.

Slavic and American foods will be available at the picnic grounds, including shish-kabobs, roast lamb, Kielbasa, Slavic pastries and hot dogs. Beer and soda also will be available.

A local nursery has donated 40 to 50 plants, including rose bushes and hanging baskets for a drawing to be conducted during the afternoon.

Performances of folk dances and songs are scheduled between 1 and 4 p.m. Dancing for the younger set, as well as games for children, will be included in the day's activities.

Proceeds from the admissions will be used to assist the university with its Slavic programs. The Friends sponsor student honor awards and loans for students through the SIUE Foundation, as well as provide support to the Slavic collection in Lovejoy Library at SIUE.

Church joins Metro-East Association

At a recent voter's meeting, the congregation of Faith Lutheran Church of Godfrey voted to join the Metro-East Lutheran High School Association.

This brings the number of churches in the association to 11 who support, both financially and spiritually, the efforts of the 5-year-old high school located in Edwardsville. Other churches that are members of the association are Holy Cross, Collinsville; Trinity, Edwardsville; Good Shepherd, Collinsville; St. Paul's, Wood River; St. Paul's, Hamel, Concordia, Granite City; St. John's, Caseyville; Unity, East St. Louis and the newest member, St. James, Glen Carbon.

The members of St. James, a daughter church to Trinity in Edwardsville, presently hold their worship services at the site of the high school until their facility can be constructed.

St. James joined the association in March, 1982. The school, which stresses Christian ideals, in a Christian setting, begins its sixth year with approximately 150 students.

'Do not enter' and do not remove sign

A city street sign at 22nd Street and Washington Avenue, warning "do not enter," was broken off at the base of the post in a noisy bit of vandalism at 2:20 a.m. Tuesday.

Officers hurried to the area and in the 2100 block of Washington they arrested Ronald E. Whitehead, 27, of 213 Grand Ave. and Steve R. Whitehead, 22, of 2218 Grand. Each was charged with property damage.

Financial aid material available

The Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville has placed on reserve in Lovejoy Library, informational resources for people interested in finding ways to help finance either their own or their children's college education.

The collection of materials contains more than 30 pamphlets, books and other materials which provide information on the location of sources of financial aid, eligibility requirements, and procedures for applying for scholarships, grants, or loans. The materials also suggest options for reducing college costs as well as career information.

According to Gary Collins, financial aid counselor in the SIUE Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance, there are many little-known resources in the private sector, as well as in the public sector, that are available to students.

Students may be eligible for some type of financial assistance regardless of their family income, Collins said. With anticipated reductions in federal student assistance, students and parents are beginning to look more to private sources of scholarship and financial aid.

The informational resources are located at the main circulation desk near the front door of Lovejoy Library. The materials may be checked out for use in the library over a two-hour period. Bibliographies on the materials may also be obtained by dropping by the Office of Student Work and Financial Assistance located in Room 208 of the Rendell Building.

Additional information may be obtained by telephoning 1-892-3880.

Candystriper earns top St. Louis volunteer award

Mary Turk gave a school speech once about helping make a better world by giving each person met a handshake, a hug or a smile. Miss Turk, at only 17, already has adapted that philosophy for herself and has been awarded for it.

Mary, a candystriper at St. Elizabeth Medical Center for the last two years, was recently cited as Volunteer of the Year by the United Way of Greater St. Louis. Mary and two other young women from the metropolitan area were chosen from a field of 50 youth nominees and 200 overall (for other awards).

The award, given by United Way to recognize area volunteers, was presented by the lieutenant governor of Missouri, Kenneth Rothman.

"We thought with all the federal and state cutbacks that volunteerism needs to be encouraged," said Ceal Andre, director of the Voluntary Action Center for United Way. "There also are so many negative things said about young people," added Mrs. Andre, "when they really need public recognition and encouragement."

Mrs. Andre said any not-for-profit agency that used volunteers may submit nominations. (There also were awards for adult volunteers of the year and for best volunteer project.)

Mary's nomination was sent in by Candystriper Supervisor Patricia Musick. "I was thrilled to death when we won," said Mrs. Musick. "Mary has taken on a lot of last-minute projects for me and always takes time out to help in any situation. She represents what all our candystripers do here. They're all really nice kids."

Mary is the daughter of Bob and Lillian Turk and was raised with more than a passing familiarity with SEMC. Her mother has worked in the business office for 15 years; her brother Bob, a social worker, recently was the recipient of the Clik Associate of the Year Award and her sister, Sister Stephanie, is an associate in stroke rehabilitation. Mary also has another brother, Steve and a sister, Kathy.

"My parents always told us to do our best and go at our own speed," said Mary.

"My mom cried when I got this award and our folks have been happy for each of us when something like this has happened. I wouldn't be anywhere without my mom and dad."

Mary's "anywhere" has been impressive. Involved in school speaking contests since her freshman year, she has won firsts in district level competition. She has worked for the school newspaper at Granite City High School North and is president of the Future Secretaries of America chapter there.

But the involvement that means the most to her has been her work with TEC (Teens Encounter Christ), three-day personal growth weekends held in St. Louis and Springfield. Mary also is a guitarist for the church and has participated in fund raising for Mother Teresa's work in drought-stricken India.

"Lots of my classmates ask me about candystripping and TEC," says Mary. "There are other kids doing what I'm doing — becoming involved and overcoming the bad things written or said about teenagers."

Mary, who has visited the hospital with her mother since she was a child, first volunteered on Four Doctors Wing, later worked in the volunteer office, but has recently returned to work on patient nursing floors.

"It was an adjustment to go back to the floor," says Mary, "because sometimes I look in all the doors at patients and it's kind of sad, but people really appreciate me and it makes me want to go on."

"Volunteering has taught me so much about the real working world."

Mary plans to attend Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville to prepare for a career in public relations. "Public relations work is so important, especially here," she adds. "So many folks come through here and their outlook is influenced by our attitude."

Mary isn't sure if her career in public relations will be in a medical center, but one thing is for sure — Mary will follow through on that idea from her speech of giving everyone she meets — a handshake, a hug or a smile.

'SHE'S TOPS.' Candystriper Mary Turk, recipient of the United Way Junior Volunteer of the Year Award, prepares informational packets that are given to visitors at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

James F. Miller, Center director, said the course reviews the four areas covered by the national exam — theory, practice, auditing and law. The course requires a minimum of 10 hours a week in addition to class time.

The class will be taught by the university's accounting faculty and carries no degree credit.

Sessions meet every Saturday (excluding three) from July 17 through Oct. 30, from 8:30 a.m. to noon and recovering from 1 to 4:30 p.m. in Room 2409 of Classroom Building II.

ASCS needs wheat information

Wheat farmers are being advised to turn in to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) Office their evidence of 1982 production. Delbert Essenspies, Chairman of the Madison County ASCS Committee said sales slips, warehouse receipts, or similar documents are acceptable.

Farmers are in the midst of harvest and warehousemen and other handlers are preparing records which can be used in establishing yields. Such records should be documented to identify the farm on which the wheat was produced. The best time to turn in these records to the ASCS Office is promptly after harvest while all records of production are available.

Essenspies said that wheat producers who have questions relative to production evidence or other

The registration fee for the online course (including 25 half-day sessions and two practice examinations) is $475, payable to SIUE. Texts and reference materials are not included, and refunds will not be made after the course begins. The deadline for registration and payment of fees is July 15.

The course is approved for Veteran Administration benefits and continuing education credit.

Alpine Village dedication

By VALERIE EVENEDEN

An enclosed shopping mall, tastefully designed and functional, a concept four years in the making and which now revitalizes the heart of Madison's central business district, officially becomes a reality on Saturday.

Dedicatory ceremonies, including the cutting of a ribbon by Madison Mayor Mike Sasyk and other dignitaries, will formally declare the David Connole Alpine Village open, will start at 10 o'clock Saturday, July 17, at the mini-mall, located at Third Street and Madison Avenue.

All segments of the community will be represented in the ceremonies and the dedicatory address will be delivered by Captain Serge A. Yonov, commanding officer of the U.S. Coast Guard, highly effective anti-submarine attack ship and ocean escort.

The new mall has been named for the late David Rickart Connole, a Madison native, winner of the Silver Star and commander of the submarine—USS Trigger—which was overdue from a war patrol in the vicinity of Naples, Italy, Asiatic area, on April 21, 1945 and was presumed lost.

The USS Connole, one of a new class of ocean escorts, specially designed for locating and destroying enemy submarines, also is named and dedicated in honor of the late Commander Connole.

At the dedication ceremonies, the invocation will be offered by the Rev. Charlotte Zachary, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Madison.

The National Anthem will be played by the Madison High School Band and sung by soloist Louise Kern.

Madison Police Explorer Post 104 will form the honor guard to present the colors at the tall flagpole, which is to be dedicated by Madison Mayor Mike Sasyk.

Mayor Sasyk will welcome those assembled and introduce several special guests attending. All area residents are invited to join in the celebration, the city's chief executive said.

Formal response to Capt. Yonov's dedicatory remarks will be offered by Mrs. Frank (Marguerite) Connole of Fairview Heights, formerly of Madison, sister-in-law of the late Commander Connole.

Father Frank Kordeck OFM, pastor of St. Mary Catholic Church in Madison, will give the benediction.

Entertainment is planned as part of the day's celebration, it was learned. Phillips and Wall, a radio comedy team from KSLQ, will be on hand to provide their unique brand of humor, and the Coca-Cola's performing robot, which will appear at the mall from 12 noon until 1 p.m. Saturday.

LATE COMMANDER David R. Connole of Madison, a World War II naval hero, whose name is being commemorated through dedication of the David Connole Alpine Village shopping mall at Third Street and Madison Avenue, Madison, at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The mall contains 12,000 square feet of floor space and currently is occupied by Reese Drugs and Farm Fresh store. The latter business is owned by L. C. "Bud" Clay and his wife, Holly, who also operate two Farm Fresh stores in Granite City.

Construction on the shopping mall was started last November by the Winfield Construction Co. of Edwardsville.

Cost of the mall project was roughly $575,000 and financing was secured with about $225,000 in Community Development funds and through the sale of $340,000 in Industrial Revenue Bonds.

In the last six months of 1981, more than $1,500,000 of capital expenditures were placed into service. During 1982, more than $3,500,000 will need to be spent; and during 1983, more than $4,700,000 is planned. These necessary expenditures for improvements and the replacement of facilities are being financed, in part, with $6 million of new long-term debt and $5 million of additional common equity," he concluded.

Tax collection

She had planned to open her office at 422 Madison Ave., Madison, next Monday morning and begin collecting taxes, but now she does not know if taxpayers will receive their bills by then. "None of us know when our bills will be mailed out," she added.

Delay and confusion are the watchwords as the question of when tax bills will arrive remains as cloudy as the questions of who is going to collect taxes and where.

Edgar reminds motorists auto license renewals due

Secretary of State Jim Edgar announced that midnight Saturday, July 31, is the deadline for car owners with license plate registrations expiring in July to display the orange 1983 stickers in the upper left corner of their rear license plate.

"Approximately 560,500 renewal applications have been mailed to registered owners who are currently displaying the brown 1982 stickers that expire in July," Edgar said.

Applications made by mail should be in the Secretary's office no later than Thursday, July 16, to ensure delivery by the July 31 deadline.

License plate stickers may be purchased over the counter at Secretary of State's facilities in Springfield and Chicago, or at 1,200 banks, savings and loans, currency exchanges and credit unions participating in the license renewal program.

Effective Sunday, Aug. 1, anyone driving a car with an expired brown, July 1982, sticker will be subject to a fine for improper registration.

Pullen, Ewing play key roles

By AL MANNING

SPRINGFIELD — Two legislators who have labored successfully behind the scenes during this session of the General Assembly are Penny Pullen and Tom Ewing.

Pullen, 35, of Park Ridge, is a fiery individual who has risen in the last 10 years from a legislative aide to a position of influence in the House of Representatives.

An arch-conservative, she has been one of the key strategists in the House for Speaker George Ryan.

Pullen joined the Young Republicans and became an aide of the late Rep. Robert Juckett in the 1960s. She was active in the Maine Township GOP organization, and was elected to the Legislature in 1976.

Under Ryan she has served as the chairman of the executive committee, one of the key posts not formally considered as a member of leadership. She aggressively opposed the Equal Rights Amendment, and has been involved in many of the nitty-gritty items of importance to the legislators.

In addition, Pullen is active in Republican Party politics. She supported Phil Crane and then Ronald Reagan for the GOP presidential nomination, and this time around she is serving as a campaign manager of sorts for Cal Skinner, the candidate for comptroller.

Without a doubt she is a force to be reckoned with in the House.

The question is where her future lies in the Legislature. Although she is mentioned as a contender for speaker or minority leader next year, several of her colleagues consider her too temperamental and outspoken for the top job.

Another candidate for GOP leader is Ewing. The soft-spoken 46-year-old representative has earned the respect of his colleagues during his 10 years in the House.

He served as an assistant state's attorney in Livingston County and was active in the Pontiac Chamber of Commerce prior to his election to the Legislature.

Ewing is thoroughly knowledgeable about state government, and has been serving as the chairman of the Revenue Committee.

He's been carrying Thompson administration bills, although not the broad range of measures which a few other lawmakers, such as Sam Vinson of Clinton, have picked up.

Ewing shouldn't be considered the front runner for Ryan's spot — the speaker is leaving the Legislature (and planning on becoming lieutenant governor) — but a scenario could develop where he emerged as the compromise candidate for GOP leader.

Pullen and Ewing are typical hard-working legislators who help establish state policy while at the same time laboring anonymously outside their individual districts and the state Capitol.

Doctor's Forum Diet for bad kidneys

Q I am 65 years old. I have lost the use of one kidney and have partial use of the other, so I am only allowed 40 grams of protein a day. I am anemic and my weight has dropped from 130 pounds to 100 pounds (I am 5 feet 4 inches tall). I do receive a vitamin B-12 shot every three days, and I take other vitamins, but I still feel weak and I am very thin. Can you suggest any way that I can gain some weight and improve my blood condition, yet stay within my 40-grams-a-day limit? — J.L., San Juan Batista, Calif.

A It is important to review some of the dietary concerns of patients with limitations in their renal function. The kidneys are responsible for excreting most of the nitrogenous waste from the metabolism of protein. This compound, called blood urea nitrogen (BUN), rises to higher than normal levels when there is an impairment of the kidneys. In addition, the kidney takes care of the acid-base problems that result from the metabolism of food. They also help adjust the amount of body fluid and filter out a variety of toxins.

The choice of a 40-gram-a-day diet comes from studies which have shown this to be a reasonable compromise to allow for maintenance of body tissues. These 40 grams, however, must be a very high biologic value protein, which means high quality protein complete in all essential amino acids. Traditionally, we have recommended milk, eggs, meat, fish, poultry and cheese, with a limited amount of salt. Also, 40 grams appears to be an acceptable lower limit to have food still be palatable.

As the amount of protein is limited, it is necessary to balance the rest of the diet with increased but nutritious calories. In this way, all the protein can be used for rebuilding tissues, and none will have to be burned for energy.

As the protein must be kept at a set level, the diet may be supplemented by using more starches and fats. Butter, oil and most seasonings and flavorings are fine, provided they do not have a high sodium content. Most fruits and vegetables, excluding potatoes, are also acceptable.

The general recommendation is that the patient take between 35 and 50 kilocalories per kilogram (2.2 pounds) of body weight per day. At a weight of 100 pounds, this would be somewhere in the neighborhood of 2,200 calories (approximately 1,000 calories are necessary for the maintenance of body function). In addition to taking multivitamins and B-12, folate might also be included to help with the anemia.

Another technique for adding required calories is the use of products such as Polycose (Ross Pharmaceuticals) as a pure carbohydrate calorie supplement. This can be added to almost any kind of food and it should have no effect on the BUN. For other available supplements, consult your hospital dietitian.

It is important to remember that often, people don't feel like eating when they have difficulty with their kidneys. One of the ways to help overcome this is to eat small and frequent snacks throughout the day, and to make sure that you eat quality food rather than so-called "junk food."

Every calorie counts and if they are adequate and the protein is of high quality, you can stay well within your limits, maintain good renal function, and feel healthier and stronger.

Dr. Drew Kelts, assistant professor of pediatrics and medical director of the Nutritional Support Team, at the University of California, San Diego School of Medicine.

Can you tell me anything about the drug? — E.M., Kingsville, Ohio

A Interferon is not a drug, but a protein that is naturally produced by various cells in the body. Interferon was discovered 25 years ago as a material that interfered with the growth of viruses, hence the name interferon. More recently it has been observed in experimental situations to have therapeutic benefit against certain cancers as well as virus infections.

Although there is much excitement regarding the potential utility of interferon for both virus infections and cancers, the actual role that interferon will play in medical treatment is just being defined by clinical investigations. In addition, interferon has been extremely expensive and difficult to obtain. Recent advances in genetic engineering (cloning) promise to make both the investigation of interferon and ultimately its general use a feasible prospect. — Dr. Douglas Richman, assistant professor of pathology and medicine at the University of California, San Diego School of Medicine.

Library use sets record

Granite City Public Library Director Robert Stack reported a record number of 261,491 books and library materials checked out here during the 1981-82 budget year in his annual statement to the Illinois State Library Board.

Stack said adult circulation figures have reached record levels with 133,933 separate adult materials loaned in a combined total from the main and branch libraries. He estimated children's materials also exceeded previous figures, but past record keeping methods are not compatible to the present system for comparison purposes. Juveniles checked out more than 261,490 library materials between May 1, 1980, and April 30 this year.

Other statistics in the report show: As of Oct. 1, 1981, 15,943 residents had borrower's cards. Families holding 10 nonresident cards numbered 338. Special 33 nonresident student cards totalled 28. The library's shelves housed 150,693 books, about 5,000 more volumes than last year. The figures take into account the approximately 2,100 books that were lost or weeded from the shelves, while 7,100 selections were added during the year. The library reported for the first time 29 motion picture video cassettes were added to the collection.

The record and tape collection was expanded by 182 additional various types of recordings with selections numbering 6,527. More than 290 recordings were added with 114 removed.

The library currently receives 261 different magazine or newspaper subscriptions a year. Of that number, 234 have back issues held for more than a year for readers. A survey of the financial figures, as well as the general information, also was released as part of an annual report required by the Illinois State Library based in Springfield. The library recorded $583,686 in revenues and $535,640 in expenses.

Local government property tax levies raised $513,154 to support the library.

A state grant based on population added $17,598 in revenue.

Other receipts of $52,934 were received from various sources including fines, donations, gifts and interest income.

Salaries and fringe benefits made up $334,786 or roughly slightly less than three-fifths of the total budget.

Printed materials such as books, magazines, newspapers, microfilm and pamphlets cost $75,053.

Other materials, including framed pictures, records and films made up $9,978 of last year's total expenses.

Rent for the branch library at Nameoki Village Shopping Center was $10,800.

About $64,000 was used to purchase office supplies and contract book binding and rebinding, and to pay for utilities, equipment and repairs.

Capital expenditures totalled $40,808, including the recent purchase of new shelving for the main library.

The library employs 11 full-time employees, as well as part-time pages. Salaries range from $21,800 to $11,835 for the four full-time employees holding graduate degrees in library science. Other full-time employees receive annual salaries ranging from $13,172 to $9,765.

Applications taken for new judge slot

Attorneys in this area already have begun filling out applications for an additional associate judgeship in this circuit, authorized by the Illinois Supreme Court.

It was announced Tuesday by the office of Joseph J. Barr, chief judge of the Third Judicial Circuit, that an additional associate judgeship has been allotted to the circuit.

In order to merit this increase in the number of judges, the director of the administrative office for the Illinois courts, determined the need based on a petition describing the caseload, nature of the area served by the court, its population, the presence of other state institutions and other data.

The applicants must be United States citizens, licensed attorneys and residents of Madison or Bond County.

Judge Barr said the names of the filing for the new judgeship will not be released until the filing deadline of Aug. 13.

Currently, the circuit has nine associate judgeships and eight circuit judges.

Disposal coupons at new Milam East office

Granite City residents who want to dispose of rubbish at the SCA Services landfill on Chouteau Island off West Chain of Rocks Road must obtain free disposal coupons at the new Milam East office, located on Highway 162, about one block west of Route 111, starting Monday, July 19.

The disposal coupons are available to Granite City residents who show proof of residence in a recent utility bill receipt or similar residency verification — plus the license number of the vehicle to be used at the dump.

No coupons will be distributed without this information, Jim Walla, Milam East district manager, stressed this week.

The coupons may be obtained between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, at the Route 162 office. The firm moved into its new quarters, a 60x70-foot building, last weekend from its former location at 2216 Madison Ave.

NEW HEADQUARTERS of the Milam East Division of SCA Services, Inc., where Granite City residents now must go to obtain coupons for the hauling of trash to the SCA Services landfill on West Chain of Rocks Road on Chouteau Island. The 60 x 70 feet metal building is located on Highway 162 about one block west of Highway 111. Proof of residency is required to obtain the coupons.

Persons without coupons wishing to use the landfill will be charged a fee, Walla said.

He noted coupons may be secured in advance and used at any time convenient to residents. There is no restriction on the number of times a resident may request a coupon to utilize the landfill.

The coupon system was put into effect to eliminate overuse and misuse of the SCA Services landfill, the district manager explained.

'Barefoot in the Park' SIUE offering

University Theater at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will continue its "Summer Show-Biz '82" series with a production of Neil Simon's romantic comedy, "Barefoot in the Park." The show opens Wednesday, July 21, playing also Thursday through Saturday, July 22-24.

All performances will be presented in the Communications Building theater on the Edwardsville campus, beginning at 8:15 p.m.

According to Lynn F. Kluth, professor in the department of theater and dance, Simon, probably modern America's most popular playwright, has a well-deserved reputation for developing artfully designed scripts that deal with the stuff of everyday life and always does this with a genuine sense of fun.

"Barefoot" explores the very early days of a marriage between a somewhat stuffy young lawyer and a fun-loving girl who does everything she can to loosen her image-conscious husband up a bit. It's gentle good humor all the way, with an awestricken mother and a slightly seedy man-of-the-world thrown in to keep the action boiling along," Kluth said.

Catherine Fitzgerald, of Fort Worth, Tex., plays the young wife, Corie, and Jeffrey Matthews, of Toledo, Ohio, plays her bewildered husband, Paul. Mary Beth Russo, of Boston, Mass., is Corie's mother, Mrs. Banks, and Randy Kieffer, of Salt Lake City, Utah, portrays Victor Velasco, a man who knows how to do all the wrong things in the right way.

The cast is rounded out with William C. Burch of Granite City as the telephone delivery man, and Keith Shaw of Centralia as another delivery man who may never again climb another flight of stairs.

The production is directed by William J. Grivna, director of performance in the SIUE Department of theater and dance. The scenic design is by John Olivastro, a recent winner of a national design excellence award given by the United States Institute of Theater Technology. Lights are by Michael J. O'Keefe, technical director of the Good Times Dinner Theater; costumes are by Charles O'Sweeney of the SIUE theater staff. The stage manager is Kelly L. McAlister, of Troy, a recent graduate of the department.

Parking is free behind the theater on nights of performance. Ticket information and reservation requests are available by calling 1-800-277-8272.

"Summer Show-Biz '82 will conclude with a run of the Rogers and Hammerstein musical, "South Pacific," Aug. 5 to 7 and 11 to 14.

Free guides promote Illinois tourism

Discover Illinois. Between its north and south borders, across miles of heart, vastly different lifestyles, geography and cultures are waiting to be discovered along the magnificent miles of Illinois.

To help find what makes up the fabric of this diversified state, the Division of Tourism in the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs (DCCA) has introduced the "Goodtimes Guides to Illinois." They are five booklets packed with information about five regions of Illinois and are available on this vacation.

These are guides to historical sites, family and recreational activities and lodging in Chicago, northern, central, western and southern Illinois. And best of all, they are free, a spokesman said.

Few states in the union can boast of the variety of attractions Illinois offers. Whether it's Chicago with its cosmopolitan environment of Arthur, where Amish people live by the stringent customs of their great grandparents, it can be found in Illinois.

The rolling plains of central Illinois, where food for the people of the world is grown, or the towering bluffs and clear fresh water lakes of southern Illinois, all are waiting to be discovered.

Gov. James R. Thompson's Advisory Council on Tourism worked closely with DCCA to provide this series of guides. Its completion highlights an on-going campaign by the tourism division to promote Illinois.

The campaign kicked-off with an advertising supplement appearing in the June 21 edition of "Time" magazine. This week, another supplement can be found in "Crain's Chicago Business."

Radio advertising promoting Illinois tourism has begun across the state, the July 11 editions of many Illinois newspapers contained coupons for people to send in to obtain the "Goodtimes Guide" and the August edition of "Chicago Magazine" will contain yet another insert.

Peter B. Fox, the DCCA director, said, "It is easy to boast about Illinois because Illinois has so much to offer. The magnificent miles of Illinois are there for everyone to enjoy."

"This is an extraordinary state. The pages and pages about places to see and things to do are perfect examples of why Illinois is a great place to live, work and play," Fox added.

Revenue from the advertising that appears in the guides was donated to the four regional tourism councils to be used to promote the state. Fox noted that cooperation like this between the state and the private sector is a prime example of how Governor

Thompson's Illinois, Inc., campaign works.

The state and the private sector working together to promote Illinois is a primary goal of Illinois, Inc., Fox said.

Two other goals of Illinois, Inc., are to increase tourism-related revenues from 12 percent to 14 percent and to increase tourism-related jobs from 124,000 to 150,000.

The guides, as well as the other advertising, will help DCCA achieve both objectives.

"The Goodtimes Guide" is an asset to the people of Illinois," said Lynda Simon, director of the Division of Tourism. "Not only will they show people across the country what a great place Illinois is to live, but they will help Illinoisans discover the wonders that lie at their back doors."

"Goodtimes Guide" can be obtained at the tourism council offices in Chicago, Springfield and Marion or at welcome centers across the state. Residents also may call 1-800-277-8272 to obtain a copy.

Solar greenhouse completed at BAC

Belleville Area College's new solar greenhouse was formally presented to BAC during the weekend.

D. Kurtz Stittler, the CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) labor liaison for St. Clair County, handed keys for the structure to Mr. Patricia Bartokas, chairman of the BAC board of trustees, Curt Eckert, a BAC trustee, and BAC President Bruce Wissore.

Stittler coordinated the project, which took three months to complete.

The greenhouse was made possible through a grant under the St. Clair County CETA Consortium's Youth Center and Community Improvement Program.

It will be devoted to the education of horticulture students.

The BAC greenhouse was one of two in the county funded through the grant.

BAC's facility will be used for education of students in horticulture classes. The second greenhouse, built at Sanddown Park in East St. Louis, will be devoted to the interests of senior citizens.

Charles Giedemann, coordinator of BAC's horticulture program, describes the greenhouse as a simple structure with simple principles.

The greenhouse operates on the trickle collector principle, with the sun shining through special fiberoptic glassing on the front of the greenhouse onto flat black absorber plates on the back wall.

These plates get intensely hot and heat up water which is trickled down the back sides of the greenhouse.

At the bottom of this absorber plate wall, the heated water is collected and stored in an insulated underground tank. This hot water can be used at night or on sunless days.

Giedemann said no fossil fuels will be used in operation of the greenhouse.

"The greenhouse will be used for standard, potted plants and for hydroponics which is something relatively new and novel," Giedemann said.

Hydroponics is a technique of growing plants in a water solution on a water-and-rock medium.

The solar greenhouse and two other greenhouses used by the horticulture program are located behind the athletic field, southeast of the main campus building at 2500 Carlyle Road, Belleville.

"These facilities put BAC in the top ranks of schools offering horticulture programs," Giedemann said.

BAC offers two-year degree horticulture programs in six areas, all of which transfer into four-year schools.

General horticulture gives a broad overview of the field and is recommended for most students who want to transfer into four-year programs.

The other programs — greenhouse management, and floral design — are for those who want to go directly into the work force.

INNOCENT PLEA
Clarence E. Haynes, 67, of 1218 Oriole St., Venice, pleaded innocent to a charge of public indecency in an appearance at the Granite City court at 2:30 p.m. Monday. Bond was set at $202 cash and a mittimus was to be issued.

Haynes was arrested during the weekend at St. Elizabeth's Medical Center, where he allegedly was seen by another patient and visitors fondling and caressing a 16-year-old Venice girl.

When the driver of a tan southbound car motioned for him to proceed, Robert L. Eason, 20, of 302 Denver St., drove east on Niedringhaus toward the middle of the intersection.

The tan car's rear wheels began to turn rapidly, leaving an 18-foot area of rubber marks on the pavement as it sprang forward. Its left front end hit the left side of the Eason vehicle and the unknown motorist then sped away from the scene. Pursuit proved unsuccessful.

A tan car parked on Olive Street had red paint on it that matched the color of Eason's auto. The engine was warm and the rear tires were found at the collision scene.

No one was near the car, whose owner is Richard L. Buckingham, 1648 Olive. A suspect has dark hair and is wearing a blue and white "suspect's" clothing Tuesday evening included a hat and a red shirt.

2 window breakings, crash solved

Sherlock Holmes is not a member of the Granite City police department but he might have been helpful with the investigative work that led to the solving of three crimes Tuesday and Tuesday night.

A 10 by 10 foot window was broken at the front of Casual Wear, Limited, at 19th Street and Edison Avenue at 10:20 a.m. Tuesday.

The replacement cost is estimated at $1,500.

With the timely help of a passerby and the store manager, it was learned that two girls ran from the scene after they had backed up to the display window and kicked it sharply, shattering the big pane of glass.

A 14-year-old, was questioned at Niedringhaus and Delmar avenues and provided a false name for her companion, who had escaped on foot.

A girl, 16, left the 1700 block of Delmar Avenue in her auto as police arrived to check that area. When it was determined that she was a prime suspect, a description of her was broadcast on the radio.

The 16-year-old was charged with criminal damage to property. She said she kicked toward the window with the heel of a shoe in anger over having missed a bus at a bus stop near the store.

Taken to court at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, she pleaded guilty and was fined $125.

The 14-year-old was released.

At 12:25 a.m. Wednesday, another business window was broken, this time at the Ponderosa restaurant, 1511 Johnson Road.

When glass was broken in a wall area at the northeastern portion of the building, four young men left the car hurriedly in two vehicles.

Aided by descriptions, officers apprehended the suspects, later releasing two of them from custody.

A charge of disorderly conduct was filed against Lloyd L. Sharp, 20, of 3250 Wabash Ave. He was released on $102 cash bail.

Quincy traffic mishap occurred at 8:45 p.m. Tuesday on Niedringhaus Avenue and Maple Street. Two autos had halted at the four-way stop.

When the driver of a tan southbound car motioned for him to proceed, Robert L. Eason, 20, of 302 Denver St., drove east on Niedringhaus toward the middle of the intersection.

The tan car's rear wheels began to turn rapidly, leaving an 18-foot area of rubber marks on the pavement as it sprang forward. Its left front end hit the left side of the Eason vehicle and the unknown motorist then sped away from the scene. Pursuit proved unsuccessful.

A tan car parked on Olive Street had red paint on it that matched the color of Eason's auto. The engine was warm and the rear tires were found at the collision scene.

No one was near the car, whose owner is Richard L. Buckingham, 1648 Olive. A suspect has dark hair and is wearing a blue and white "suspect's" clothing Tuesday evening included a hat and a red shirt.

Musterman said the seminar, which was held at the Granite City Junior High School, was a success. The students were given an opportunity to sit in on an actual trial in progress in the courtroom of Circuit Judge Charles Chapman at the Edwardsville courthouse.

A trip to the new Madison County Courthouse was a real eye-opener. Anyone who hears and sees that iron door clang shut has to get a closer look at the machinery of his stomach. It made quite an impression.

The two trials lasted almost four weeks, two weeks of which were spent in preparation.

One class found Goldilocks innocent while the other found her guilty and sentenced her to one year's probation along with an order for restitution of all damages.

County tells unions of financial woes

By JIM SCHLUTER
 The Madison County Board of Finance and negotiations committees met last week with representatives of the county's three employee unions, but it remains to be seen if the unions will agree to concessions to help the county reduce the $2 million budget deficit it faces in 1983.

According to negotiations committee member Bill Webb, Granite City, the county in the first meeting just wanted to let the unions know of the county's bleak financial picture.

Webb and Herbert "Junior" Melton, who serve together on the county's negotiating committee, also are employed by Granite City Steel. The steel company was holding similar meetings with its employees at the same time the county was meeting with representatives of county employees' unions.

"The main reason for the county meeting was not to ask them to do anything," Webb said. "The main thing was just to show them the financial position of the county. They seemed aware of our problem."

The meeting came as a result of a special board meeting June 28, in which the county board instructed the two committees to consider concessions to the current union contracts such as wage freezes, wage reductions and other suggestions.

Negotiated pay increases that were part of contracts signed with the three unions last December total $500,000 in 1983, but board members have warned that layoffs may be necessary as the county looks for ways to balance its budget. More than 75 percent of general fund expenditures go to personnel.

Joanna Watson, president of Local 799 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, has little comment on the meeting with the county committees.

"We're going to discuss among the executive committee and then the union body what was said," she said. "They (the county) told us about the situation of the county and what we might want to do."

A F S C M E, which represents most of the courthouse workers, is by far the largest county union with more than 400 members.

The county also met with Local 590-C of the Operating Engineers, which represents sheriff's department workers, and the Teamsters, which negotiates for the highway department.

Webb said the county and the unions will meet again next month.

Madison students earn BAC honors

Four Madison residents were named to the honor roll at Belleville Area College for the spring 1982 semester.

Johnny Latham, Diana Lewis and Angela Williams earned honors and Patricia Yurko earned high honors.

To attain honors, a student must maintain at least a 3.0 average on the college's 4.0 system. High honors requires a 3.5 average.

BAC is a community institution serving 30,000 residents in eight Illinois counties with academic, vocational and career advancement courses and community programs.

RCGA urges bill support

The St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association has urged members of the bi-state metropolitan area's Congressional delegation to support a pending bill continuing federal support for tax-exempt industrial revenue bonds.

To severely curtail IRB's as advocated by the Administration "would truly be 'penny-wise and pound-foolish,'" the lawmakers were told in a letter from RCGA President James M. O'Flynn.

The RCGA board of directors took a position on IRB's recommended by a special study group consisting of experts on bonds and economic development. Former St. Louis Mayor John H. Poelker was chairman.

The board endorsed "in concept" Senate Bill 254, sponsored by Sen. John H. Chafee (R-R.I.) and co-sponsored by Sen. John C. Danforth (R-Mo.) and others.

However, it suggested allowing the use of the bonds for commercial development in suburban and population growth areas. The bill would restrict IRB use for such developments and for recreational facilities, to distressed areas.

The RCGA directors expressed particular concern that the bonds be available for warehouses, because of their interest in development of the St. Louis port.

The Chafee bill would provide an exception to a recent Internal Revenue Service regulation so that states could issue IRB's under umbrella programs, provided all projects in a program were in one state. It would offer incentives for research and development, require public review before an issue was approved, and require annual reports by state authorities to the Treasury Department.

The RCGA board also noted the need to retain IRB financing for not-for-profit entities such as the Missouri Health and Educational Facilities Authority, as recommended by its legislative advisory committee.

"The IRB program is essential to the economic well-being of the metropolitan area and the states of Illinois and Missouri," O'Flynn said in his letter.

Home arson investigation

Police and firefighters this week are continuing an investigation of possible arson in a blaze occurring at 5:35 a.m. July 5 at the one-story frame residence of Mark Stram at 2565 Adams St. The occupants were away from home.

An intruder is believed to have set multiple fires on the main floor and one blaze in the basement.

The fire caused $4,000 damage to the structure and $8,000 loss to the contents of the home.

How to save money on your grocery bills

Here are some important shopping tips

- 1—Check specials in food store advertisements.
- 2—Get to know the butcher and produce manager.
- 3—Find out when deliveries of perishables are made and shop on those days. Fresher foods last longer and consequently, you'll waste less.
- 4—Learn to estimate accurately the amounts of food needed. Keep a record of the amount of food you throw away in a week. It may alert you to ways you can reduce waste.
- 5—For economy and variety, use eggs, dry beans, and peanut butter in place of meat some of the time. These foods provide protein and most other nutrients that meat supplies.
- 6—Use nonfat dry milk, which is less expensive than fluid milk, at least part of the time in cooking and as a beverage.
- 7—By law, economy sizes of non-food items must save you at least 5% over other sizes of the same brand.
- 8—Try to shop as seldom as possible, preferably once a week.
- 9—Always shop with a well thought out shopping list. Try to base your list of foods on your menu for the week.
- 10—Take advantage of the special coupon offers going on at First Granite City Savings in conjunction with your local Schnuck's grocer.

Beasley bestowed award for saving infant's life

"In the eight years that I have been working for Madison County, there has only been three Life Saving Awards presented by the Heart Association. Jeffrey Beasley should be very proud to receive one, it's something he will treasure forever," said Edward Morton, Territory Cardiacpulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) Chairman for the Heart Association.

Beasley, a 14-year-old, received the award for saving the life of William Werner, an 18-month-old boy. Beasley was baby sitting him and his two older brothers when the youth found William lying face down in the bathtub, which had only a small amount of water covering the bottom of the tub.

Beasley was preparing to wash and rediaper William and had just turned on the bathtub water faucet when the two other boys ran outside of the room. After Beasley caught the boys outside the door only moments after, he saw the infant in the tub.

Beasley pulled the baby out of the tub, noticing that his fingers and lips were blue. Recognizing that the baby was not breathing, Beasley said that the baby's chest was not moving. "I just applied the basic techniques that I learned from health class. I administered mouth to mouth and called the police. Basically, it was pure instinct, I guess," Beasley said.

"I learned CPR two years ago in a two week course, Paul Kratz was my instructor at Grigsby Junior High School and he is really a great teacher. If the same situation came up, I'm sure I would do the same thing," said Beasley.

"People always complain that the paramedics are slow to the rescue, but they were there by the time I hung the phone up with the police. They were great!" recalled the hero.

"Jeffrey is still baby sitting the child two times a week. If I ever hear anyone ask for a good baby sitter, I highly recommend my son," said Beasley's mother, Betty Beasley. "Jeffrey has always been good with young children," she added.

According to Beasley, William is doing fine and is a "fat and easy true boy."

"At first I didn't want to sit anymore, but now I love it.

There is only one condition, I won't give William another bath!" said Beasley.

Beasley also received awards from Mayor Paul Schuler and one from the paramedics and EMTs of the Granite City Fire Department. He also was awarded a gift certificate for 25 free games from Galaxy Space Arcade. "I get letters from people I don't even know simply thanking me and saying they are glad there are people like me in the world," said Beasley.

Conditional discharge in delivery of drug

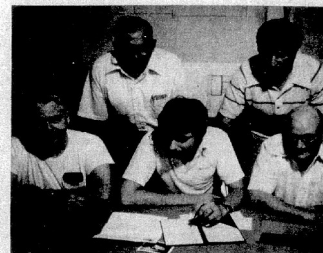

Maynard "Sonny" Carter, 54, of 401 Weaver St., Venice, has been placed on 18-month conditional discharge this summer by Circuit Judge Philip J. Barick for delivering a controlled substance. The date was not specified but the charge was filed April 21 by the Illinois Bureau of Investigation.

In addition to the conditional discharge, Carter was fined $1,000 plus $100 costs by Barick and was ordered to make restitution of $50.

Associate Judge Edward Ferguson in late spring dismissed a March 15 IBI charge that Carter delivered a controlled drug Nov. 24, 1981.

Spanish Manila

When Spanish conquistadors arrived in 1570, the low level land that metropolitan Manila, the Philippine capital, now occupies had only a small Muslim settlement defended by a fort. The Spaniards out-fought the defenders, established the city of Manila in 1571, built a better fort and ruled the area for nearly 400 years.

STREET DANCE PLANNERS put their heads together to complete arrangements for Saturday's annual street dance of the Columbus Home of Knights of Columbus Council 1098. The event, which is free and open to the public, will be from noon to midnight in the street outside the K of C, 21st Street and Edison Avenue. Food, beer, soft drinks and other items will be sold. Live music will be provided by Vince International. Planners in the front row from the left are Ed Evans, Keith Sanders and Harry Hadley. In the back row are Al Sanders, left, and Norm Bennett.

Entrants are being accepted for March of Dimes contest

The Metro East Chapter of the March of Dimes is now accepting entrants for its Queen Contest, which will culminate with a coronation and dance Nov. 19 at the American Legion Post 199, St. Louis Rd., Edwardsville.

Candidates must be 13 years or older and single to enter. All contestants are required to have a sponsor and any club, group, organization or individual is eligible for sponsorship. The candidate raising the most money for March of Dimes will be named Queen with the next four highest fund raisers serving as her court.

The winner will receive several gifts including a wardrobe and jewelry. The top sponsors will receive trophies.

Contestants must turn in all money raised by Monday, Nov. 15. The March of Dimes recommends that contestants organize fund-raising projects. Money is to be turned in to the March of Dimes immediately following each project and ticket sales are to be turned in at the end of every month.

The contestants entry fee is $20. A $1 donation per person is required for admittance to the Coronation Ball with dancing until midnight and a cash bar.

For contestant applications and additional information call 692-0888, 656-8368, 288-9362 or 667-2166.

Colossians 2:11: "... but Christ is all..."

There can never be any doubt in our minds but that Christ is all. He was the Son of God. He was the sacrifice for the sins of the world. He was obedient to the will of the Father. He has this testimony: He pleased God.

Now we must hold Christ in the same esteem as did God. He is sufficient for us. He is all we need. He is the way, the truth, and the life.

Let Him be all for you today.

File aggravated assault charges

Stanley Jones, 28, of 305 Mercedola Ave., Venice, was charged with two counts of aggravated assault following a weekend incident in which it was alleged a weapon was fired at a Venice trucking firm. He was released from custody on payment of a $204 cash bond.

Cooperation between Madison and Venice police departments resulted in Jones' arrest at Calhoun and Weaver avenues, moments after a male passenger was seen alighting from a vehicle at Logan and Mercedola, allegedly carrying a paper sack.

The incident started in the 200 block of Madison Avenue when George Brissett and Robert Spainhower said they were driving south on Madison, saw a man fall off a motorcycle and stopped to assist him.

They alleged a vehicle halted at the rear of their truck and the driver started honking the horn, then drove forward at high speed, nearly striking Spainhower. Some minutes later, the same driver reportedly drove his auto onto a lot at 1420 Broadway, where Brissett and Spainhower operate a trucking concern and had parked their vehicle, and allegedly pointed a blue steel weapon and fired a shot, the men reported.

The license number of the auto was reported to police and Jones was arrested. A search of the vehicle failed to reveal a weapon, the report stated.

STEALS PURSE. While she was cutting grass at Christ Gospel Church, 2814 Victory Drive, at 4:30 p.m. Friday, Mrs. Carolyn Campbell, 2813 Birch Ave., reported that someone stole her handbag from the front steps of the church. The leather purse contained cash, keys, credit cards and a checkbook.

Course for potential welding inspectors

Belleville Area College will be offering a course to prepare students studying welding or those presently working as welding inspectors for the American Welding Society Inspector Qualification and Certification.

The course will prepare students for possible qualification and certification as a Certified Welding Inspector. This will help them in their present employment or help them gain employment.

An inspector's duties and responsibilities as they apply for certification will be reviewed during the course and a series of tests will be given for students to evaluate their progress. The class will be taught on the AWS D 1.1-81 Structural Welding Code-Steel.

The instructor will be D. L. Davis, supervisor of quality assurance for Combustion Engineering's St. Louis plant. Davis, a certified welding inspector, has extensive experience in the field of welding and is a level III in dye penetrant and magnetic particle inspection.

When the course was offered in the spring, 90 percent of the students passed the certification test.

The class will start from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays, beginning Aug. 28 for 10 weeks. The class will end approximately one week before the certification test is given in this area.

For information, interested persons may call Carner Kinbrell, coordinator of the welding program, at 1-235-2700, extension 252. Early enrollment is being advised.

Five booklets reveal 'Goodtimes' in Illinois

Discover Illinois. Between its north and south borders, some 388 miles apart, vastly different lifestyles, geography and cultures are waiting to be discovered along the magnificent miles of Illinois.

To help find what makes up the fabric of this diversified state, the Division of Tourism in the department of Commerce and Community Affairs (DCCA) has introduced the Goodtimes Guides to Illinois. They are five booklets packed with information about five regions of Illinois and are available this vacation season.

These are guides to historical sites, family and recreational activities, and lodging in Chicago, northern, central, western and southern Illinois. And best of all they are free.

Free states in the union can boast of the variety of attractions Illinois offers.

The Muny's remaining 1982 shows are: "Gigi," July 12-18; "Anything Goes," July 19-25; "West Side Story," July 26-Aug. 1; "Grease," Aug. 2-8; "They're Playing Our Song," Aug. 9-15; "Where's Charley?" Aug. 16-22; "The Wiz," Aug. 23-29; and "A Chorus Line," Aug. 30-Sept. 5.

Whether it's Chicago with its cosmopolitan environment or Arthur, where Amish people live by the stringent customs of their great grandparents, it can be found in Illinois.

The rolling plains of central Illinois where food for the people of the world is grown or the towering bluffs and clear fresh water lakes of southern Illinois, all are waiting to be discovered. "The Goodtimes Guide is an asset to the people of Illinois," said Lynda Simon, director of the Division of Tourism. "Not only will they show people across the country what a great place Illinois is to live but they will help Illinoisans discover the wonders that lie at their back doors."

Goodtimes Guide can be obtained at the tourism offices in Chicago, Springfield and Marion or at welcome centers across the state, or call 217-782-7139.

Courts terminate 5,065 June cases

The volume of pending cases in Circuit Court, Third Judicial Circuit (Madison and Bond counties), decreased during June by 136 cases and progress was made in catching up currency in some of the most time-consuming case areas, according to the circuit's monthly report released this week.

In releasing the report, Willard V. "Butch" Porrell, circuit clerk, noted, "There was a loss of currency in (traffic, ordinance violation and misdemeanor) but they are not time consuming. However, such cases as July 15,000 and over," where 64 were filed and 82 were terminated, and in felony "where 68 were filed and 58 were terminated" and other cases of the law variety were very productive during this month."

Following are the numbers of each major type of case filed, terminated and pending at the end of June

Cases	Filed	Terminated	Pending
Law cases seeking more than $15,000	64	82	2037
July	24	8	350
Non-jury
Law cases seeking $1,000 to $15,000	15	43	418
July	34	68	1034
Non-jury
Other cases	36	20	500
Chancery	32	25	526
Miscellaneous Remedy	3	218	256
Eminent Domain	3	218	256
Juvenile	32	30	7
Mental Health	153	136	972
Divorce	119	72	1817
Family	64	58	292
Felony	68	58	34
Misdemeanor	406	289	2003
Small Claims	407	507	2083
Totals	1,452	1,587	12,386

In the traffic division, 3,136 new cases were filed during June and 2,838 were terminated, the report shows.

Of the 63 felony defendants whose cases were terminated during the month, 42 were convicted of felonies, 14 charges were dismissed or consolidated with other cases, five were reduced to misdemeanors and one case was tried as a felony, but not convicted. Another case was acquitted by the court. There were no jury convictions during the month.

Guiltily pleas during June included seven for Class X felonies, nine for Class Two felonies, 22 for Class Three felonies and four for Class Four felonies.

Felony sentences during the month included 15 persons sent to prison, seven receiving probation with periodic imprisonment and 20 receiving probation or conditional discharges with other conditions.

Granite City teacher copies "Activities for Itty Bitties"

Seeding 2, a smaller version of the popular Seeded journal series of classroom ideas for children, is available at the Teachers' Center Project (TCP) at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

"Activities for Itty Bitties" is a collection of math problems and mind teasers for the Kindergarten or first grader. It was compiled from various sources by Heidi Miller, elementary teacher at Logan School in Granite City.

It is a delightful second edition in a planned series of mini-texts published by TCP, according to Tom O'Brien, SIUE education professor and TCP director.

Higher food prices in future

(This is the ninth in a series of 15 articles exploring "Food and People." In this article, Willard W. Cochrane, professor of agricultural economics (retired) at the University of Minnesota, predicts that resource scarcities and international developments will lead to higher food prices in the future. Copyright (c) 1982 by the Regents of the University of California.)

By WILLARD COCHRANE: Most Americans today are understandably complacent about their food supply. For much of this century, farmers have produced more than Americans could consume.

The surplus has kept food prices relatively low — and much lower than in most other countries.

But it may be time to do some hard thinking. Although there is no cause for Americans to worry about going hungry in the next 20 years, there are certain economic developments — particularly on the international scene — that will affect their food supplies and their standards of living.

CHANGES IN AMERICAN AGRICULTURE

Major changes in the American agricultural industry since the early 1930s have made it more dependent on energy resources and more vulnerable to changes in the world market.

Fewer and larger farms, using more capital and energy and less labor, are producing ever-increasing amounts of food.

Largely through the magic of new technology, the number of persons supplied with farm products by each farmworker has risen from 9.8 in 1930 to 67.9 in 1979.

Increases in farm productivity have outstripped population growth. In recent years, much of the resulting surplus has been shipped abroad.

By 1979, when one-third of agricultural production was destined for export, the agricultural sector of the U.S. economy had become fully integrated into the world market.

Much of the world was dependent on the United States for food, and the U.S. was dependent on that foreign market to absorb its agricultural surplus.

Concurrently, the giant service industry has developed to provide farmers with such nonfarm-produced supplies and equipment as tractors, harvesting machinery, fertilizer, fuel, pesticides, and so on. And beyond the farm gate, a giant food and fiber marketing system has developed to assemble, transport, process, package, and retail the products of the farm.

These two industries now dwarf the national farming operation itself.

There is every reason to believe that these trends will continue into the 1980s and on to the year 2000.

Should they cause American consumers to worry about a serious food shortage in the next 20 years?

In a strictly physical sense, the answer is no, for a number of reasons.

First, domestic supplies could be increased by reducing food exports.

Second, domestic supplies could be augmented by reducing our consumption of meat and eating grain directly, as do most of the world's people.

Third, an estimated three million acres of potential cropland are lost every year to highways, housing developments, and other nonfarm uses.

Second, domestic supplies could be augmented by reducing our consumption of meat and eating grain directly, as do most of the world's people.

On the other hand, the growing worldwide scarcity of critical resources is cause for concern.

The most important event affecting Americans in the 1970s was the energy crisis — or, more specifically, the petroleum crisis.

The worldwide petroleum crisis has several implications for American agriculture.

First, it is causing the prices of nonfarm-produced necessities, such as pesticides and machinery, to rise rapidly.

Second, it is creating balance-of-payment problems for many countries. These problems will, in turn, give rise to pressures for food self-sufficiency within those countries.

Third, this development, taken with the fact that the petroleum crisis is inducing a worldwide depression, would raise the price of the export demand for U.S. grains — and cause the domestic price of grains to sag, to the detriment of government price support.

Other words, if the conditions outlined above materialize, American consumers will be spending a larger share of their disposable incomes for food in the year 2000 than today.

Furthermore, world grain prices are likely to fluctuate widely, sharply and unpredictably as a result of abnormal weather conditions, wars, and changes in the internal economic policies of such countries as the USSR, China and India. Thus, prices received by American farmers are also likely to fluctuate widely, sharply and unpredictably.

Further, farm input prices are likely to rise as a result of soaring energy prices and inflation, leaving American farmers caught in some unpredictable race between rising product prices and rising input prices.

Thus, Americans are going to be subjected to some large, but unpredictable, short-run price movements in farm products as well as a general upward trend in prices.

DOMESTIC POLITICS. Given the above scenario, we can expect consumers to petition the government to assist them to hold down the price of food by operating a grain reserve, restricting food exports, expanding domestic food programs (for example, Food Stamps) and perhaps imposing price controls.

Farmers, on the other hand, are likely to petition the government to refrain from doing most of these things, and instead to support farm products and to assist them to expand exports.

It thus seems likely that there will be some intense political struggles over domestic food and agricultural policy in the next 20 years.

But both consumers and producers of food should agree on the desirability of increased research and development in the areas of energy and food production and distribution.

In the short run, there will be some difficult, but not monumental, problems for Americans in the food and agricultural sector.

In the longer run, if we as a people are wise and we give attention to increasing world food production, Americans can avoid any serious reduction in living standards. And villagers in Africa and South Asia can avoid starvation.

Course for women in management

A course designed for women in managerial positions will be offered at Belleville Area College this fall.

According to Karen Brown, instructor for the course, women are not always prepared for the demands of stress business places on them, in spite of an extensive educational background.

"Women Aspiring to Management" will cover resume writing and interview skills, time management, stress management, communicating, assertiveness training, negotiating skills, harassment on the job, travel and career planning.

While designed for women, the instructor said the information can be valuable to men as well. It can be beneficial to men who don't know how to relate to women in management positions.

"Problems in Business — Women Aspiring to Management" will meet from 7 to 9:45 Thursdays for 10 weeks beginning Sept. 2 at the BAC main campus, 2500 Carlyle Road, Belleville.

Registration is from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Fridays at the Registrar's Office, room 2306, at the main campus. Phone registration will be July 12 to 30.

State's forensic labs certified

The eight forensic science laboratories operated by the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement received official accreditation from the American Society of Crime Laboratory Directors.

At the state's Maywood Forensic Science Laboratory, DLE's crime labs are the first in the nation to achieve certification.

Gov. James R. Thompson accepted the certificates of accreditation from Carlos L. Rabren, chairman of the ASCLD's Laboratory Accreditation Board.

More than 100 state and national law enforcement officials, including William L. Doran, acting assistant director of the FBI, and John Bullaro, vice-president of the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police, were anticipated at the presentation ceremony.

The accreditation follows a series of rigorous on-site inspections conducted by ASCLD's team of examiners. The inspectors checked the laboratories' compliance with established standards in firearm and toolmark examination, drug chemistry identification, latent print comparisons, trace analysis, serology, handwriting and document comparison and other forensic sciences.

The examining board also rated the laboratories for the qualification and training of their professional staff, facilities and equipment, management, and actual performance based on case histories.

The accreditations certify that each of DLE's crime laboratories has met objectives and demanding standards of performance and is fully qualified to perform scientific analysis of evidence in criminal cases.

An open house and tour of the Maywood Crime Laboratory followed the presentation.

INJURIES WEDNESDAY. Mark Donithan, 21, of 612 Margaret Ave., Mitchell, was treated at St. Elizabeth Medical Center at 2:30 a.m. Wednesday for injuries to the left leg and left hip and a small tear in the right eye, after running to the emergency room from the 2000 block of Washington Avenue. Mike Wallace, 205 Washington, reported being struck in an eye. Investigators were unable to verify the source of the injuries.

WARRANT ARREST. Antoine Jarvis Shipp, 17, of 134 Garesche Homes, Madison, was arrested at the Madison police station at 1:18 p.m. Tuesday on a warrant alleging criminal damage to property. She was released at 3:10 p.m. Tuesday on payment of a $102 cash bond.

Thief tries to exit via 'in only' door

A thief was thwarted in his get-away bid from Revco Drugs, 304 Madison Ave., Madison, at 6:40 p.m. Monday, when he attempted to leave by an automatic door which is activated only by someone entering the store.

The man, described as black, between 22 and 25 years old and wearing faded pale blue overalls and a light green tank top and a dark color and white mesh baseball cap, reportedly reached across the counter and took a $20 bill from the cash register.

When he attempted to leave by the door for incoming traffic only and could not get outside, the clerk blocked the exit door and grabbed the money from the man's hand as he tried to walk out.

Milam East says trash dumping permits reduce abuse

"It's a shame that a lot of good, honest people have to pay the price for a few people's mistakes," said Jim Walla, district manager for the Milam East Division of SCA Services, describes the necessity for imposing a permit system for Granite City residents to dump trash in the company's landfill on Chouteau Island.

We understand SCA's position, but fear that the more difficult the company makes it to dump trash, the more temptation there will be for some city residents to just dump it by the side of the road.

The latest in a series of attempts to regulate trash dumping involves requiring city residents to obtain dumping permits in Nameoki Township before they can use the landfill, which is in Chouteau Township.

It just seems that those of us who pay taxes for trash-dumping privileges should be able to use the dump without first driving west to Route 162 near Route 111 to obtain a permit and then hauling the trash east to Chouteau Island.

Walla says, the company's commercial haulers, such as roofers and tree trimmers, have been the root of the problem. Perhaps two dozen of them have used their privilege as Granite City residents to repeatedly use the dump free, because it was not the intent of the contract between SCA and Granite City.

So, in order to stop free commercial use of the dump, Walla says, it became necessary for the company to regulate the dumping. "It is costing us more in labor, manpower and materials (to regulate dumping). It is not something we want to do," Walla stated. He noted that when persons suspected of being commercial haulers apply for a permit, the company will physically check the person's home to determine if the roofing material, limbs or trash actually are coming from that home.

He noted that a person tearing down a garage at his home, for example, may legitimately dump a truckload each week for several weeks free, but the person tearing down someone else's garage for pay should not have that same privilege.

"No system is totally foolproof," he noted, but said that since the coupon system was initiated several months ago, residential dumping has dropped from 3,000 cubic yards a month to 1,500 cubic yards. "We just wonder where the other 1,500 cubic yards went," he ended up in the dump when the hauler decided to pay his fair share for using the dump, but that may be a bit optimistic. We fear that some of it is blocking alleys because the owner has not obtained a permit to dump it and some of it, unfortunately, has ended up along the side of the road somewhere.

"This week, we toured a back road in Nameoki Township, near the levee, and saw piles of trash dumped under "No dumping" signs. To further show a lack of respect, the signs were full of shotgun pellet holes — good targets for a little practice.

A woman was openly burning a stuffed chair across the road from her house and was placing bags of trash on the burning chair. It should be noted, however, that she was not a Granite City resident, and, therefore, does not have free dumping privileges at the dump.

It used to be that Granite City residents needed only fill their truck or van or car with trash from their home, haul it to the dump and show the guard a city sticker on his vehicle. Commercial haulers, aware that they had a Granite City sticker, Walla notes, then simply put Granite City stickers on their trucks. "We had trucks with Missouri license plates dumping free, because they had a Granite City sticker," Walla notes.

Then, it became the job of Granite City's City Inspector Emerald Dawes to determine if the commercial haulers were dumping trash in the dump. A person cleaning out his garage on a Saturday could not then dump the trash that day, unless he had previously obtained a permit, because the city inspector's office was not open on Saturdays.

Subsequently, Milam East decided to issue permits at its office in downtown Granite City. Later, that decision was moved to the dump, which we feel that was a good idea, until we found out that the permits were issued only between 8 and 10 a.m. on weekdays.

Now, Milam East has moved its offices to Route 162 just west of Route 111, south of Pontoon Beach. It's a good 15 to 20 minute round trip for most Granite City residents, then another 30 to 35 minute round trip to the dump.

At least, the hours for obtaining a permit have been expanded, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

Walla has a suggestion. Anyone planning to be in the vicinity of the Milam East office on a weekday, perhaps a day off or vacation, may take a recent utility bill or other proof of residence, stop in, obtain a permit and hold on to it. "The coupons are good until used, weeks, months or a year from now," Walla says.

Then, when the time to clean out the basement or garage strikes on a Saturday, homeowners can do so and proceed directly to the dump, rather than dumping the trash along the side of the road.

Hopefully, a cleaner Quad-City area will result. The dump, which has reduced free dumping by commercial firms and the taxpayers, who pay for the right to dump in the landfill, will be able to do so with minimal lost time and mileage.

Bicyclist hurt in collision with car

A bicyclist, Monte Morgan, 32, of 1911 Sixth St., E. Madison, was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center at noon Wednesday after being struck by an auto.

Joseph A. Plebanek, 18, of 5 Devon Hill Lane, charged with driving without a valid driver license, was traveling west out of a company's driveway in the 1700 block of State Street.

The front of his auto came in contact with the bicycle, which was southbound along a sidewalk area. Morgan was knocked to the pavement when the bicycle fell. Plebanek's vision of the walk was obscured by a chain link fence.

"I heard this roar," said Robert Witter, as she began describing the incredible experience her family endured early last Saturday. "I thought one of the kids had forgot and left the tub on."

The loud noise that woke Mrs. Witter, Rural Route 2, Granite City, a user of the Madison County Sanitary Sewer Service Area One, unfortunately had nothing to do with an untended faucet.

Mrs. Witter followed the sound down the hall towards the family's bathroom. Located on the first floor of their split-level home, and could see what she thought was water coming from an overflowing toilet. It was the last night's meeting of the Madison County sewer district.

"There was a good foot of water standing in my children's bedroom, the family room and the bathroom utility room," said Witter. The family had piled most of their clothes on the floor of the utility, a ritual for the Witter home is the lowest house in the area.

"I received damage to my carpet beyond repair. My kids' mattresses were ruined, couch, easy chair. All doors are warped and wouldn't close."

The basement all has to be replaced. My hotwater heater element was undamaged. Witter stated in his letter to the board.

He has already pulled out all the lower floor carpeting and some of six downstairs doors.

Witter told the sewer board he had an immediate health problem. In view of his son's condition, but the sewer board could not offer him no answers. Without no one to help them, Randy Witter has been forced to sleep outside the house.

"I took me four hours to get out of the house," Witter told the sewer board.

Her daughter, Amanda, 8, woke to her mother yelling at her to get up in a hurry. She said her mother then told her to get a hold of everything she could and pile them on the downstairs beds and the couch.

"I put my winter boots on," said Amanda, who had to wade through the rising sewage in an effort to save what possessions that could be saved.

Her younger brother, Jeffery, 6, also helped. After trying to get the emergency number Mrs. Witter had been given by the Madison County sewers district and getting no answer, she tried to call the sewer office and got a recording. Finally, she was able to reach a Pontoon Beach Police Department dispatcher. The dispatcher promised to try to locate the sewer district employees rushing to check on the equipment after Sunday's rain to four-inch rain.

Meanwhile, her husband, Randall Witter Sr., arrived members. When he did reach Superintendent Gene Futch, who had been busy checking other complaints and pumping stations, he was not offered much hope.

Futch had no pump to help the family cleaned out their house or no quick answer to the immediate problem.

Witter said there was nothing he could say to Witter, except he was sorry.

According to Morris Miles, county board member and chairman of the sewer committee, the sewer lines became overloaded as residents in the Witter area used the sewer lines to pump drain water accumulated from the rains.

Pumping of ground drainage water into the sewer system is illegal, but a common practice, Miles said. The committee had been warning residents such an incident could occur in the event of heavy rains.

Miles said the Witter home is the lowest house in the area.

not have the facilities or means to take care of them. These parents are willing to pay for one system of education they do not use and pay for another system to educate their children. It's their choice. Remember that two-thirds of Catholic school age children are in public schools, and we would not be supporting something to hurt them. These parents have a special burden and save other taxpayers money; they should receive a tax break.

Feels coverage of steel meetings deceptive

To the Editor:

Your front page article of July 8 concerning presentations by Granite City Steel to its employees about the current recession's effects on the steel industry preceded a disservice to the workers at Granite City Steel, their union, this community and the company itself.

Upon reading that article, one might easily conclude that a choice between the two alternatives at Granite City Steel between granting wage concessions to the company or losing their jobs. This is quite clearly not the case. At no point has Granite City Steel management stated to the union that the closing of the plant is even a remote possibility. In fact, we have been told that the future of National Steel is firmly committed with the Granite City Steel division.

Your article serves only to spread unnecessary fear, anxiety and rumors.

Decisions which could affect the standard of living of thousands of people in Granite City Steel and that of thousands more in the community who depend upon that economic base must be approached responsibly, rationally, objectively and be based upon all the facts and information available.

Your article, unfortunately, painted a picture using speculation and emotion which was not consistent with reality.

Those corporations and interests in our country who seek to take advantage of the uncertainty caused by the severe recession may take comfort by such distortions. However, the long-range prosperity of steelworkers and this community must be the priority, not the narrow, immediate goals of those who seek to use the Reaganomics-induced recession to take back now the wages and benefits which corporations voluntarily provided for the free collective bargaining process.

Clearly, the standard of living of the workers has been under severe attack for some months. Attacks on workers' rights and the company's sacrifices by those who are the victims of the recession, not its cause have been mounted. The press has played its role in furthering this process.

I can only prevail upon you to provide a balanced and objective point of view in the future.

No federal support for Hospice here

To the Editor:

Thank you for the great article on Sister Margaret from New Zealand and the Hospice program. The caption with the picture was a "rare treat" and, actually, she was the treat for us. I would like to clarify a statement made in the article. It was stated, "In the United States, the government reimburses Hospice."

(One of the reasons why the Medical Center has supported Hospice of Madison County is because of its difficulty in becoming self-supporting.) At the present time, the United States government does not reimburse Hospice services, despite our continual effort to get relief for these patients, even if it be in the form of Social Security benefits when they can no longer be gainfully employed but are not yet 65 years old.

In New Zealand, Hospice does not receive government support, but the terminally ill do receive a pension and Sister Margaret was telling us how each civic community adopts its Hospice program and actively supports it with fund drives, etc., especially through service clubs.

Probably the universal appeal of Hospice (whether in New Zealand or the United States) comes from the fact that all of us have experienced the death of a loved one and know the needs of the terminally ill and their families.

I feel I should write this in order to let our local people know that our Hospice is not government financed and how much we appreciate local support.

Steelecrest residents need better access

To the Editor:

I am writing in regards to a woman's letter which appeared in your paper last week. The letter stated concerning a problem many of us living in the Steelecrest area have had to live with for years.

The only way we have of reaching our fellow citizens until recently was to take the Mockingbird Lane obstacle course. At first we were happy when Keith Drive and the beautiful homes were built. For the first time, we were able to avoid man-eating potholes on the way to and from work.

No more, the beautiful people in the beautiful homes have made Keith Drive into their private driveway by widening it, influencing the city council into making it one way.

I took us three years to get a stop sign on here.

My neighbors and I hope area residents will continue to write and telephone the city officials until a new solution can be found for Keith Drive.

GC Legionnaires split pair with Wentzville, C&H

HEADIN' FOR HOME. Granite City Junior American Legion pitcher Jim Burton strains as he makes his delivery to home plate. Burton, a member of Granite City's Junior Legion team competing in the North St. Louis County League, went the distance Tuesday evening against Cottleville and Harvester. Unfortunately, C&H came out on the winning end of the contest 3-1. The Junior Americans face Wentzville Sunday at 1 p.m. at Granite City South's Varsity Field.

GRANITE CITY — Baseball is full of irony. That's the only excuse Junior American Legion baseball coach Dave Coakley could give for his team's 3-1 loss Tuesday to Cottleville and Harvester of St. Charles.

Tuesday evening his team took an early 1-0 lead in the first inning, but failed to muster an offense the remaining six innings to fall short of C&H.

Ironically, things were much different the night before. Against Florissant Monday evening, the Juniors fell to a discouraging 7-0 first inning deficit, but a steady, consistent game plan enabled Granite City a come-from-behind victory in the ninth inning to win 9-4. Granite City managed two runs in their half of the first, three runs in the third, one in the fifth, two in the sixth to tie the game and one run, the winning run, in the ninth when Greg Nemeth doubled home Randy Thurman who had led off with a triple.

In that game, disaster came early for Granite City starting pitcher Jim Burton as he lasted but one-third of an inning before Dan Whitsell rescued the right hander in the top of the first inning. Whitsell allowed Florissant just one run in the remaining innings while he and his teammates slowly picked away at Florissant's lead. In the end, Whitsell hung on to pick up the victory for Granite City, their eighth of the season.

Coakley spoke openly and with enthusiasm of his team's performance against Florissant Monday, but after Tuesday's game words were more difficult.

"I'm speechless. I don't know what to say," Coakley said. "All I can figure is that the kids were emotionally drained after last night's (Monday's) game against Florissant and didn't have anything left for tonight," Coakley said.

Evidentially, his team had very little after Monday's game because they mustered only three hits, several less than the 11 they managed the night before.

C&H, however, didn't do any better at the plate Tuesday, as they too were only able to come up with three one-baggers. Those three hits coupled with three walks in the second inning was just enough to lift the Missouri club to the victory.

Granite City jumped on top in the first inning Tuesday when lead off batter Greg Nemeth reach on a walk. Nemeth stole second and later scored when C&H's center fielder Randy Gust bobbled Tom Adamitis' single. The inning ended with Terry Rujawitz's grounded out to third base for the second out and Adamitis was picked off at third trying to advance to third on the throw to first base.

For the remainder of the game it was an uneventful evening for Granite City at the plate. In each of the six remaining innings, only twice did more than three Granite City batters venture to the plate — four batters in each of the fourth and seventh innings.

The win on Monday and Tuesday's loss adjusts Granite City's North County League record to 8-7. The win boosts C&H's record over the .500 mark at 9-8.

This evening Granite City faces O'Fallon at O'Fallon Park at 6 p.m. Granite City's next home game is this Sunday at 1 p.m. at Granite City South's Varsity Field when they take on Wentzville.

Edwardsville downs Glen Carbon; end is near

By NANCY WELLS
of the Press-Record

To Glen Carbon American Legion Coach, Larry Corey, the fact that his team completed its regularly scheduled season deserves an award.

Glen Carbon finished the season with a 9-2 loss to Edwardsville Monday evening at the Granite City High School North field. The team's record is 3-13 with play-off competition left beginning Monday.

"Well, we finished the season. I think that deserves some sort of survival award," Corey said.

After playing three exceptionally good games, losing by two in extra innings to East St. Louis, and by only one run to both East Alton and Bethalto, it looked as if Glen Carbon had reached nirvana. Not so.

Edwardsville brought all Glen Carbon's old troubles back in the form of the immortal one bad inning. This time it was the second inning that caused Glen Carbon players to frown as Edwardsville scored six runs on seven hits, all singles.

Pitcher Sam Tate's mother commented in the stands that her son's face shows everything. He proved her correct as he scowled through the majority of the game. With a small pitching staff, and only nine players present because several had to work, there was no chance of a reliever for Tate, who worked hard during the game, but gave up 11 hits.

The problem was as much Glen Carbon's lack of hitting as it was Edwardsville's power. GC batters could not get the ball out of the infield and had only three hits.

Edwardsville batters hit the ball over the heads of the infielders, but several were chip shots that dropped right between the infield and outfield.

"They seemed to be well-placed hits," Corey said. "We had trouble getting the ball out of the infield. I don't know if it was their pitching or us."

Edwardsville started the game by scoring a run in the first. Glen Carbon came back in the first and also scored when Greg Beeler, who walked, stole second and reached on a single by Brian Levin.

In the third, GC brought in its second run when Beeler, who walked again, advanced on a bunt by Levin and crossed when Vince Mitchell singled to left field.

But Edwardsville scored again in the fourth and seventh to put the game beyond reach. Much to GC's credit, Edwardsville had the bases loaded in the fifth with two outs and Tate got out of the inning when Dave Vieth hit a fly ball to left.

Despite the score and the bad inning, Glen Carbon had only two errors, neither of which came in the second inning.

Defensively, GC had some good plays like catcher Mitchell's back-up stop of a wild throw from short to first.

Corey said the team will have only 10 or 11 players through the playoffs because of job commitments and Brian Corey has left for Cuba as part of the Rescued Officer Training Corps.

If there were a survival award to be given, Glen Carbon certainly could use it now more than ever before.

Civics' winning streak ends at six

By AL BARNES
For the Press-Record

EDWARDSVILLE — All good things, eventually, must come to an end.

That was the story Tuesday night at Hoppe Park when the Southwestern Illinois Civics baseball team saw its winning streak end at six and its record not at 12-14 when they split a doubleheader with the strong Red Oak, Iowa, Red Sox.

Coach Bobby Hughes' Civics, continuing their batting surge of the past six games, were truly awesome in the twelfth game as they devastated the Iowans, 11-4.

It was a sad story, however, in the nightcap as Jerry Deml, the Civics' ace mound reliever, ran out of steam and saw the invaders erupt for four runs in the fifth frame and another quartet of tallies in the sixth to demolish them, 9-2.

In the opener behind the brilliant pitching job of lanky Tom Kloeckner (pronounced, Klockner), the Civics were overwhelming. And it appeared that they might go on to a two-game sweep and thus avenge the two losses which they had suffered two weeks ago in their trip to western Iowa. On that sojourn, they had dropped a pair of one-run losses to Red Oak, 9-8 and 8-7.

At South's Varsity Field tonight

"Home field" for the Civics game tonight will be Granite City South's well lighted field. Fans are urged to park their cars in the neighborhood of the American Heritage of Bank and walk to the park. Game time: 7:30 p.m. The Waterloo, Ill. Merchants, a member of the Mt. Clair league, will furnish the opposition.

It was a case of Fives Are Wild for Kloeckner: he fanned five, walked five and allowed five hits. It was his fifth victory, too, to go with one loss. An interested onlooker was STU Edwardsville head baseball coach, Gary (Bo) Collins.

Said he: "I'd like to have him, of course, but my scholarships are used up." Tom's dad feels he's leaning toward Arkansas State U. At bat in the opener, the Civics had a number of stars: Darrell Wehrend went four-for-four; Granite City's Jim Greenwald continued to look like he's recovered his "hitting eye" as he was two-for-four and drove in a pair of runs; Edwardsville's Tim Gamble, who may, according to Collins, end up as one of the vacant outfield slots caused by the graduation of Joel Housewright and Whereend, continued his red-hot hitting, three-for-four and one RBI. George Vogel, Housewright's and Wehrend's third partner in the Cougar's brilliant outfield, was only one-for-four, but, Oh, that one: a towering 400-foot shot over the left field scoreboard in the winner's big, five-run third to drive in two runs. Jack Scarborough, with one safety, and Bill Solte, two out of four, concluded the Civics' barrage at bat.

In the second game, it was another story, a pitching dual for four frames. The Civics' lanky mound reliever ace, Jerry Deml, was mowing down the Iowan batters as he fanned eight. But, alas, the visitors were out in from, 1-0, on an unearned run in the first inning set up by an error. When Deml retired eight straight (six on strike outs) in the second, third and fourth innings, it looked like the Civics would run their streak to seven. It wasn't to be, though.

Then the big bats of the Iowans (most from California colleges) came alive and the tiring Deml couldn't get anybody out.

Home runs by the Red Sox's Doug Palmer (in the fifth) and Dave Olson (in the sixth) each sparked the visitor's pair of four-run frames. And, in addition, Red Oak's hurler, Jeff Montgomery, was real sizzling with his base hit just three — and silenced the Civics' offense for the first time in eight games. Five Civic errors, too, didn't help their cause any, either.

Collecting the three hits allowed by Montgomery, were: Tim Kavanaugh, Tim Gamble and Rusty Hilkenscamp. Rusty's blow was a screaming double which just missed being a homer. Gamble's long single drove in one run (in the seventh), while the Civics scored their first tally without the benefit of a hit in sixth.

"There are seven different states competing and our team has a good chance of winning," said Drum. If Rutkowski wins the tournament it will advance to the nationals, which could possibly be in Denver, Colo.

Fairview's fourth trips Triplets

FAIRVIEW HEIGHTS — The Tri-City American Legion baseball team hit the ball hard against Fairview Heights in a District 22 game Tuesday, but the Triplets were hit hard by several things in their 6-3 loss to Fairview Heights.

The Triplets hit the ball hard and had two home runs in the game, but most of the time, the Triplets hit the ball hard to Fairview Heights' fielders.

On the other hand, Fairview Heights picked up seven hits in the third and fourth innings and got the best of two close calls at first base to score all of its runs.

The calls would come into importance in later innings because the call prompted the Triplets to comment on the umpiring. The Triplets' comments drew a warning to the entire bench from the home plate umpire in the sixth inning, and Milt Roe was ejected from the game in the seventh inning after he struck out.

Tri-City manager Al Yount emphasized it was the aggressive play of Fairview Heights that lost the game, not the umpires' calls.

The Triplets took a 2-0 lead in the first inning thanks to the long ball. John Linhart hit a single and stole second, and Rick Dohy put the Triplets on top with a home run.

Fairview Heights waited until the third inning to tie the game. Troy Pink walked, and Dave Kassebaum hit into an apparent double play. However, Tri-City first baseman George Jarvis, who fielded Kassebaum grounder, hit Pink with the throw in trying to get the double play and everyone was safe.

Bob Schroeder hit a single to load the bases, and Pink scored on a grounder to first while Kassebaum scored on a sacrifice fly.

The fourth inning was the Triplets' stormiest inning. Rod Goldschmidt Kassebaum's single, Schroeder was the slimmest of margins to upset the Triplets. The first close call didn't matter as Mark Going hit a sacrifice first while Jarvis threw Goldschmidt out at third.

Bob Tedesco hit a single, Pink hit a double, and both scored on Kassebaum's single. Schroeder was the recipient of the second close call of the inning. Both Kassebaum and Schroeder scored on Dave Slimack's single.

Darrell Harris started the game for Tri-City but was knocked out in the fourth. Sean McGowan finished the fourth, and Dan Patterson shut out Fairview Heights in the fifth and sixth innings.

Joe Schefke's sixth inning home run for Tri-City, which curved over the fence fair, seemed to start the Triplets going again. Darren DePew and Jarvis walked after Schefke's homer, but both were stranded.

The Triplets would have preferred to have the win in order to keep up with Edwardsville and Collinsville in the race for third place and an automatic spot in the District 22 North Division double elimination playoffs.

The Triplets finish the regular season this weekend. Tri-City plays at Edwardsville tonight at 8 p.m., hosts Morrisville Friday at 6 p.m., plays at Collinsville Saturday, and has a double header with Freeburg and Highland Sunday at 1 p.m.

Sunday's double header is tentatively scheduled to be played at Granite City, but the double header may be moved to Highland.

The District 22 single elimination playoffs for the fourth place spot in the double elimination playoffs begins Monday. The sites of the tournament have not been determined yet.

CAUGHT IN RUNDOWN. Darren DePew of Tri-City American Legion baseball team is tagged out after being caught in a run-dow in the fourth inning of Tri-City's 6-3 loss to Fairview Heights Tuesday. Shortstop Dave Boeschon tagged DePew for the out.

Paddlers win fourth; preparing for championships

By NANCY WEIL
of the Press-Record

Paddlers' swimming and diving teams both won the fourth meet of the season Tuesday night against the Bellefontaine Eagles at Paddlers. While the Eagles proved to be better competition than previous teams, both victories were decisive. The swimmers won 498-116 with eight new records and the divers won 42-20 with several exceptionally high scores.

"It will get tougher," Gayle McCormick, diving coach, said. Paddlers competes against Gaslight of Collinsville Tuesday and Mrs. McCormick anticipates that meet will be much more competitive than the first four.

Several of Gaslight's divers swam in St. Louis, Mo., during the winter and therefore have access to facilities all year long, she said.

Right now, Mrs. McCormick is working to build the diver's confidence before the conference championships. "They're learning new dives. That builds up their confidence to learn something they didn't think they could do."

The divers are also working on their poise. Next week will be hard for the divers, Mrs. McCormick said as the week after is the championship meet.

"All the clowning around will go away," she said.

Celeste Sonnenberg, Paddlers' swim coach, agreed that Gaslight will be a tough meet. "It should be a pretty good meet," she said.

The swimmers will not, however, start work outs in preparation for the championships on Aug. 7 until two weeks from now.

Until then, Miss Sonnenberg said she has given the older swimmers YMCA State and National qualifying times. She and assistant Mike Burnworth, told the swimmers to work toward those times. This strategy will help the swimmers beat Gaslight and "it will help them for the winter," when they compete in YMCA swimming.

Diving results were:
Boys 10 and under: Tom Seneczyn, first; Billy McCormick, second; Larry Curry, exhibition.

Girls 10 and under: Jenny Baker, second.

Boys 11 and 12: Tim Voyles, first; Marc Sine, third.

Girls 11 and 12: Heather Crane, first; Wendy Knollman, second. Miss Crane had 109.15 points and Miss Knollman had 99.65.

Boys 13 and 14: Mark Doniff, first with 124.70 points.

Girls 13 and 14: Michelle Loftus, second with 122.90 points.

Girls 15 to 17: Lisa Lilley, first with 198.45 points and Kathy Zeugin second with 191.45 points.

Records set were:

Girls 11 and 12, 100-meter IM: Patti Martin, 1:17.11 broke her old record of 1:18.20.

Boys 13 and 14, 200-meter IM: John Amisch, 2:39.55, broke his old record of 2:41.75.

Girls 15 to 18, 200-meter IM: Cindi Stroheide, 2:49.02. The old record of 2:52.11 stood since 1977.

Girls 11 and 12, 50-meter breaststroke: D'Na Hankins, 41.10. The old record was set in 1968 by Karen Reisinger.

Girls 15 to 18, 100-meter breaststroke: J'Lynn Hankins. The old record was set in 1969 by Anne (Bielhaus) Peters, former Paddlers' coach.

Girls 11 and 12, 50-meter backstroke: Patti Martin, 37.17. The old record was 38.29.

Girls 8 and under, 25-meter butterfly: Mike Geske 1:05.46. The old record of 1:06.4 was set in 1972.

Twenty-four attend volleyball camp

"Our volleyball camp emphasizes skills and techniques of the game," said Chris Boyd, assistant to the coaches of the three-day volleyball camp at Granite City High School South conducted by Robin Deterding from Granite City, Mike Deterding and Sonya Locke.

Twenty-four girls attended the camp. The first two days were set aside for teaching skills and the last day was set aside for a tournament. The camp ran from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The camp was for anyone wishing to improve and attain skills which might help a player compete on the collegiate level.

Warm ups before practice seemed to be a favorite. The popular song "Fame" was played while all of the girls danced around the gym. "We do this to loosen up the girls' muscles before practice. It is more fun than basic exercise," said Miss Deterding. Miss Deterding was assistant women's volleyball coach at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, National Co-ed Female Rookie of the Year, former SIU Carbondale player and captain, collegiate All-State player, certified level II United States Volleyball Association coach and camp clinician throughout the country.

Sonya Locke is currently a SIU-C volleyball player, collegiate All-State player, AAUW All-American and certified level I USVBA coach.

Fifteen of the 24 girls attending the volleyball camp were from Granite City Lori Mills, Cindy Minner, Michelle Morgan, Anne Puhse, DeeAnn Sanborn, Sandra Sanborn, Jeanie Dodson, Allison Boyd, Theresa Soellner, Gina Graham, Vicki Smith, Chris Loyet, Rachel Colemann, Tammy Jones and Lisa Lilley.

Sports of all Sorts

Readers respond to column

By AL BARNES

The response on my most recent "Sports of All Sorts" column was mind-boggling—both from umpires and referees but also from the general public.

It wasn't much of a surprise, really, the intensity of the words of approval from the hard-working and abused arbiters because they do, in fact, receive much critical comment which, in most cases, are really not deserved.

What shook me up was the number of calls and letters from the public backing the officials and attesting to the outstanding jobs most ump and refs do.

Three Generations...

An interested reader of my column about officials was Edwardsville's Bob Gregor, one of the most outstanding umpires working in southern Illinois. He pointed out to me that three generations of his family have "worked" baseball games with Andy Tinko, one of the subjects of that column. "Yes, my daddy, Joe, worked over thirty years ago with Andy in the Illinois Inter-City League. And now I work with him as does my son, Brad. Andy is a credit to the profession," said Gregor.

So, I guess the highly vocal cat-calls the officials get at the games aren't really in a serious judgment of the caliber of "calls" they are making, but instead, is a friendly testing reaction that the fans indulge themselves as "part of the game."

Looking back on it, I'm sure that this is true. I know that it is with me. It is part of the American Public's image of revolt against authority, a facet of our rebellion against the powers that be. Generally, we pay lip service to the idea of maintaining "law and order," but there is a streak of the outlaw in most of us.

And, the umpires and referees, as symbols of that ideal are frequently the faultless victims of that attitude. And, funny thing is, it makes for a better game, I think.

However, I have long felt that we Americans should back a plan to help solve the problem of untrained officials. Some, let's face it, are real bad.

With the exception of organized baseball, basketball and hockey, all other American sports are "called" by men and women who are really not professional officials, have had no formal training in the profession of officiating.

Pro football, I suggest, is the worst offender in this respect.

This is not to say that most officials calling pro football don't do adequate jobs. But, more and more, since the use of "instant replay" has it been dramatically proven that even the best of them "blow" key and crucial "calls" tipping unjustly, the balance in favor of a team and penalizing the other.

My suggestion to solve this overall problem is: let's set up a system in which we can train young men and women to become really professional game officials. As a Nation of sports-loving individuals and spending literally billions of dollars overall in the developing of our various teams, from the grade school through college levels on up to and through the pro ranks, we turn around and pick untrained people to call our games. Nuts, huh?

Briefly, my idea is this: Set up a program, say so, for example, in the grade schools where a boy and girl may decide that they wish to become professional officials. Then, when they enter high school a decision could be made to take a well-structured course of classes aimed to fit them for a degree in officiating in college. Then, when in college they can announce their intention to major in the field and after four years be graduated with a degree in officiating.

Pros Look At Horton...

Charlie Horton, the other subject with Tinko on the Umpires' story, has had agents of the American and National Leagues secretly "scouting" the Madison native's working of local baseball games for almost one year. I have been told. My source, however, would not permit his name being used to substantiate the report. Personally, if Charlie opted to go that route, I believe he could do the job in an outstanding fashion.

However, as a medicine, I visualize that each of the young men and women would then have to take "state board" exams before being allowed to "bid" for jobs in their field. After certification, of course.

After that phase, to reach the top level of the profession, they would then be forced to take... and pass... a national exam. The various states and the national groups, of course, would have to find means of "funding" the programs. However, I see no problem in this area: simply lay on a five percent per ticket tax to each game in which the participating officials are members of the National & State Association of Game Officials.

This would raise the status of our game officials to truly a professional level and making it possible for young men and women to enter the field secure in the thought that they are just like any other career job. A life's work as an umpire or referee.

There are, of course, many problems in this proposal.

but its advantages are so great that it surely deserves immediate attention. The problem of who say, to referee the Collinsville vs. Granite City South in soccer would be automatically solved: The Illinois State Director of Officials would have the duty of assigning the men or women to "work" that game and could, and probably should, appoint two to three officials from the Chicago area.

What do you think?

Japanese 'dumping' of stainless clad steel brings 14 percent import duty

The United States International Trade Commission has ruled Japan Steel Works' dumping of stainless clad steel plate in the U.S. at 14 percent below fair market value has injured the domestic clad plate industry. This final decision, which under existing U.S. trade laws took nine months to reach, supports Lukens Steel Company's Oct. 6, 1981, petition to stop the unfair pricing of clad stainless imports by the Japanese manufacturer.

The ITC decision means that the Commerce Department will impose a 14 percent anti-dumping duty on stainless clad products shipped into this country from Japan since March 22, 1982. This is in addition to the regular 11.1 percent duty in effect for 1982.

"We are confident that the decision would be made in our favor," said John F. Weaver, chief operating officer of Lukens Steel. "The evidence we submitted in our petition clearly showed that Japan Steel Works was dumping their stainless clad steel and that this practice was injuring the U.S. clad industry. We are very pleased that our original contentions were supported by the ITC," he added.

In Lukens Steel's Oct. 6, 1981, petition, the company cited three domestic petrochemical projects where 1,475 tons of less than fair value stainless clad plate were supplied by Japan Steel Works. Normally a low-volume, high-value product, stainless clad plate steel imports skyrocketed from less than 40 tons in 1979 and 1980 to 2,500 tons in 1981, according to Lukens Steel.

Addressing the import situation for the domestic plate steel business in general, Weaver said, "The favorable decision on stainless clad steel plate should slow the rate of clad imports, but other plate steel is still flooding into the American market. Many of these products are either directly or indirectly subsidized by their governments. They are literally stealing jobs from American steelworkers."

Noting that present import laws are too slow in reacting to the immediate needs of the American steel industry, Weaver stressed the need for a government-enforced quota system on foreign plate steel. "Under the present law, foreign steel firms can continue to ship into our country for months after a complaint is made," he explained. "By establishing a quota system, the amount of tonnage entering our domestic market can be curtailed rapidly. This is critical. It will assure the American steel industry that a predictable percentage of the market will remain domestic and that American steelworkers and producers can remain viable members of the American industrial economy," Weaver added.

Burglars enter six vehicles

Burglars entered six vehicles, mostly parked at homes within a short distance of one another in Madison, one night last week.

Those reporting break-ins and vandalism, included: Louis Bistrot, 1724 Market St., Madison, who had a AM-FM eight-track stereo, valued at $250, stolen from a truck, parked in his driveway; Tom Koroby, 1826 Market St., who also had an eight-track radio removed from his auto; Jerry Thorne, 3731 Market, whose van was entered and an electronic calculator stolen from the glove compartment; Fred Bosworth, 1665 Second St., whose carryall truck was ransacked, as well as a 1966 auto; Between 10 and 12 eight-track tapes, valued at $100, were stolen from the auto. An attempt to remove a stereo and equalizer from the car was unsuccessful.

Joseph T. Steele, 1829 Fifth St., reported the lock was smashed on a window vent to gain entry into his pickup truck. The glove box was found open and the contents were scattered about the cab. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $57.

CUTS SCREEN

Jerry Cholewick, 2828 Pershing Blvd., reported arriving home at 7:20 p.m. Friday to find his house had been burglarized. The intruder cut a screen and forced a window open to gain access and then rummaged through drawers and closets. An inventory was being taken to determine what items were missing.

STATE LAW STRUCK DOWN

Fluoride in water still volatile issue

By JOAN MURARO
SPRINGFIELD — Like Prohibition and the Equal Rights Amendment, the question of fluoridating water supplies seems to strike a nerve in most people.

They may be for it; they may be against it; few are indifferent to it.

Like the other issues, fluoridation seems to generate emotion and fear, creating clouds of confusion that obscure the single, basic question: does adding minute amounts of fluoride to drinking water safely reduce or prevent tooth cavities in children?

"Absolutely," say a number of proponents including the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American Dental Association, and the Illinois General Assembly, which in 1967 approved legislation making fluoridation of the state's public water supplies mandatory.

But opponents, notably the Safe Water Foundation of Delaware, Ohio, maintain that fluoride is a poison, unsafe in any quantity, and carries the risk of cancer, poor circulation, headaches and chest pains.

Recently, two events pushed the issue of fluoridation back into the forefront of the news. First, health officials warned of a growing shortage of the most commonly used fluorides, and at Illinois judges acting in a suit that had been pending for 14 years set aside the state's fluoridation law as unconstitutional, amounting to an abuse of powers by the state.

The legal decision was handed down in Atlanta where the climate seems to foster organized opposition to generally accepted causes. (The town was the birthplace of the "Stop ERA" movement which recently saw the successful conclusion to its 10-year battle.)

In the Alton fluoridation case, a group of citizen lobbyists termed "The Citizens of the Illinois Pure Water Committee" filed suit in 1968, the year after it was adopted, against the Illinois Water Co. and the state Public Health Department to stop enforcement of the fluoridation law.

Over the years, 10 jurists reviewed the case. Last February the 11th and final one, Marion County Circuit Judge Ronald Nieman, ruled in favor of the committee, holding the law was an abuse of powers, and that the state had failed to disprove the claims of the opponents.

The Illinois Supreme Court, on an appeal by the state, has ruled the state may continue to require fluoridation while the legal battle is still before the court. That, according to Raymond Kuthy, public health dentist with the Illinois Department of Public Health, "could be quite awhile."

But Illinois is not alone in requiring the addition of fluorides to its water supplies. Seven other states — Connecticut, Georgia, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Ohio and South Dakota — also mandate it, and many other states add fluoride without the presence of legal orders to do so, according to sources at the University of Illinois.

All told, an estimated 112 million Americans drink water to which fluoride has been artificially added, and 107 million more drink water in which fluoride occurs naturally.

The relationship between fluoride content and tooth decay incidence was noted 40 years ago, when it was established that a water supply with one part per million (ppm) was associated with 50 to 60 percent fewer cases of tooth decay, according to Adria Sherman, assistant professor of foods and nutrition in the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Since 1942, numerous studies done in communities "have confirmed and reconfirmed findings that the earlier a child has an available source of fluoride, the greater the protection it will provide," Sherman says, but opponents charge the studies have no validity since they are community surveys, not scientific laboratory tests.

"If they had a variety of laboratory tests and no community surveys, they'd probably say just the opposite — that laboratory tests don't prove anything," says Ira Markwood, head of the public water supply division of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA), the group that has the responsibility for monitoring community compliance with all aspects of water safety, including the mandated additions of chlorine and fluoride.

"I believe anybody opposing fluoridation either has no children, or is doing those children and grandchildren a great disservice," Markwood says.

Opponents point to successes in a number of areas in which fluoridation has been defeated when subjected to public referendums, but Markwood said he is aware of at least one community that discontinued it after a campaign by opponents, then voted to restore fluoridation when dental checks about two years later showed tooth decay in children had doubled.

Scientists do not disagree with opponents' claims that fluoride is toxic — at least at some levels. Technically classed among the trace minerals, it is not essential to the way other nutrients are people can live and grow without it, according to Sherman.

But "it would be difficult to drink enough water to get an overdose of fluoride," says Dr. Terry Hatch, physician at the Urbana clinic and a faculty member of the Division of Nutritional Sciences at the University of Illinois.

"The kidneys do a good job of excreting excess fluoride so one would have to drink an enormous amount in a short period of time. Experts say a level 2,500 times the recommended amount would be ingested to cause death."

Slightly higher dosages than those recommended (2 to 8 ppm) can cause dental fluorosis, a mottling of tooth enamel which is an aesthetic problem but no health hazard. Dosages of 20 ppm osteosclerosis, or hardening of the bones, may occur, while result at 50 ppm or more.

All the serious complications require huge increases over recommended dosages, but, critics maintain, equipment errors and equipment failures have been known to occur. Because of its ability to deposit in bones as well as teeth and strengthen them, pediatricians sometimes order fluoride as a supplement for breast-fed infants or children in rural areas who have no other dietary source of the mineral.

Hatch says, adding that more recently it has also been recommended for some adults to prevent or treat osteoporosis, a degenerative bone disease.

While anti-fluoridationists question studies indicating fluoride's effectiveness in combating tooth decay, they do accept charges by John Viamouliannis, a biochemist and president of the Safe Water Foundation, who claims fluoride inhibits the actions of enzymes that repair genetic material and other human cells that lead to cancer and genetic damage and cancer.

During the Alton hearings, Viamouliannis alleged that "two or three" Illinoisans die of cancer each year because of fluoride in water.

To support his claims, he compared cancer deaths in 10 major cities which fluoridated water, including Chicago, with cancer deaths in cities which do not fluoridate water supplies.

Diane Essex, associate professor in the School of Clinical Medicine and the department of Educational Psychology at the University of Illinois at Chicago, said she sity of Illinois disputes his claims; results from one highly urbanized area can not accurately be extended to other U.S. cities, she maintains, because higher cancer rates in cities with fluoridated water could also result from other causes.

Sherman also disagrees with claims the connection between fluorides and lessened decay is unproven; she says the community surveys were "carefully designed to study rates of tooth decay" and adds that some of the earlier, original studies were scientific, lab projects on animal models.

Markwood agrees. "Except for the testing on chlorination, there probably isn't any area that has been as thoroughly documented as the benefits of fluoride," he said. "Usually we do laboratory tests because we can't test people in the case of fluoride, we've been able to see what happens when people use it, not animals."

While anti-fluoridationists may welcome the news that at least temporarily fluorides will be in short supply, people like Markwood aren't getting particularly about the shortage resulting from an economy-linked decline in the manufacture of phosphate fertilizers (fluorides are a by-product).

Both the fluorides most widely used are scarce, and sodium fluoride is easily available, but, Markwood said, "We aren't advising anyone to switch to sodium fluoride right now, if supplies of their regular products aren't available. If they (youngsters) don't get it for a week or a month or two months, it doesn't seem to make a lot of difference; it's a long process (the improvement from fluoridation). If they don't get it for six months or more, it makes a significant difference."

So he feels communities could miss adding the material for a week or two, until new supplies are available, more comfortably than they could switch to the sodium variety, which poses some problems in dissolving, and can be dangerous to handle, particularly at small installations not equipped for it.

Markwood estimates that only about 1 to 9 percent of the approximately 2,000 public water supplies in Illinois fail to fluoridate their water despite the state mandate, and these, he says, are "very, very small" systems.

He theorizes they fail to do so because "they don't understand the value of it, they see it as a bother, or it's just one more thing that someone has to take care of."

Enforcement lies with the department of public health, through the civil courts, though IEPA can also take enforcement action before the Pollution Control Board, he says, if the lack of fluoridation is only one of several enforcement actions the agency is bringing before the PCB on a specific system.

Richard Carlson, IEPA director, said a review by agency staff "concluded that the company's proposal is a reasonable effort to determine the cause and extent of the leakage of chemicals from the trench along with a program to restore the trench to its desired level of performance."

Spokesmen for IEPA said a specific start and end dates were set and the time frame for the work would probably hinge on availability of the necessary pumps.

The firm, based in Louisville, Ky., maintains the leakage is caused by hydraulic pressures building on the bottom of a trench containing primarily household and industrial solvents, which was inundated by a torrential rain in the summer of 1979, while the trench was still open. A single storm dumped more than 14 inches of water into the trench, according to IEPA and U.S. Ecology spokesmen.

Recently, test wells revealed some leakage from the trench, on the southern edge of the site.

FUNDING CUT

Health agencies feel the pinch

By JOAN MURARO
SPRINGFIELD — Seven years ago a new program became effective in Illinois, providing for agencies (largely non-profit) to plan and direct orderly development of area-wide health services.

Initially there were 11 of the federally financed Health Service Agencies (HSAs) in Illinois, part of a nationwide grid of 204 such groups.

Today, Illinois has 10, another is locked in what may be its final battle with federal authorities, and "maybe three others" are likely to go out of existence in coming months, according to officials of the public health department that oversees the agencies.

Among the ones on the ropes is the agency serving Will County.

Still another HSA, serving Kane, Lake and McHenry counties, appears about to be merged with the agencies serving Chicago and Metropolitan Cook County, despite objections by at least one of the counties involved.

The HSA already disbanded served the East St. Louis area; some of its functions were taken over by the state of Missouri.

Harold Ziebell, associate director of the Office of Health Planning in the state public health department, said some of the agencies involved are giving serious thought to going out of business because of an inability to continue to provide services in the face of changes in federal funding — in the case of Will County, for instance, dropping from $300,000 to $100,000 — combined with requirements that they reach 100 percent staffing in accordance with strict population ratios, by next Dec. 31.

As originally planned, HSAs were to serve areas with a 500,000 minimum population, but some, like Will County, were given a federal waiver to begin operation serving a population of about 470,000, Ziebell said.

Now, he says, the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) is calling these "borderline" agencies "minimal" and they are being funded minimally.

At the same time, under the regulations developed by DHHS, the HSAs were required, by last March 31, to have achieved 50 percent of full staffing, and to meet a 75 percent staffing figure by July 31 of this year. Staffing is to be 100 percent complete by Dec. 31, Ziebell said, with "full staffing" defined as roughly one staff member for each 100,000 persons served — generally, a staff of five for each HSA.

"The problem is," Ziebell said, "how these agencies can hire a staff of five and continue to carry out their functions at the same time their funding is dropping to $100,000 a year."

Basically, the HSAs are to develop long-range plans for the areas they serve, with emphasis on certain areas of health care where needs are seen. They are agencies serving these plans into one-year increments with an eye toward eventual completion of the entire plan.

"For instance," Ziebell said, "an HSA might set a target of reducing infant mortality by a certain percentage over a five-year period. It would draft the five-year plan, then each year set up specific plans which would say 'Starting Monday morning, this is what we do as the first step.'"

They also do initial project reviews on applications for certificates of need, which hospitals, nursing homes and other providers must obtain from the state before undertaking planned expansions or shifts in services offered. The HSA's recommendation for or against approval, while not binding, is taken into consideration by the division of facilities planning.

Though Kane County officials have gone on record opposing the plan, the Kane-Lake-McHenry HSA with the Cook-Chicago group, Ziebell said it is his understanding the preliminary work has largely been completed.

"If (the merger) is generated by the agencies

Sentenced to 2 years in prison

Timothy Joseph, 19, of 2631 Missouri Ave., has been sentenced to two years in an Illinois state prison by Circuit Judge Philip J. Rarik for a forgery and for himself," he said, "and it seems reasonable. Between them there are five counties involved, and that's five-sixths of the Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (the missing sixth is Will County)."

Before completion, the merger will have to obtain department approval, and will then have to be given permission by the governor to change its boundaries.

"That's the way it's set up," Ziebell said, "but we've never had to do it since 1977 when the program started."

Should the HSA serving a given region close, he said, the office of health planning will assume some of its functions, including holding public hearings on certificate of need applications, if such hearings are requested by any interested party.

an instance of criminal damage to property on Feb. 11, both in Granite City, 1981.

Date of the forgery was not shown on court records, but the charge was filed Nov. 18, 1981.

James D. Murphy, 19, also of 2631 Missouri, was sentenced by Rarik to 90 days in jail and two years of probation and was ordered to make restitution of $2,104 for criminal damage to property in Granite City Feb. 11, 1981.

The felony damage charges were based on slashing of 40 tires on new and used autos parked on the Woodmonte Oldsmobile lot. It was alleged that retractable razor knives were used.

The tires were cut at 4:30 a.m. and the two were captured nearby a short time later by Granite City police.

The knives were confiscated. In the summer of 1981, a Nov. 29, 1980, East Alton forgery charge against Murphy was dismissed by Circuit Judge A. A. Matocian.
